WOMAN SENTENCED TO 20 YEARS IN CREAM PUFF POISON CASE

MAKES PLEA OF NOLO

Providence, June 1.—Hattie E. Merrill of Woonsocket, known as Hattie E. Oakley, pleaded nolo in the "cream puff poison" case today. The plea was accepted. She was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment.

The defendant was charged with murder in causing the death by poison of Almand Vadeboncoeur of Woonsocket. The trial began yesterday. When the afternoon session began today the woman pleaded nolo. The State had put on twenty of its witnesses up to that time.

Providence, R. I., June 1.—Two handwriting experts, Joseph H. Clarke, supervisor of writing in the Providence High School, and Frederick Bowman, also of Providence, were the chief witnesses for the State in the so-called "Cream Puff" case today.

Both testified that the handwriting of Hattie E. Merrill or Mrs. Oakley as she was generally known, who is on trial here, charged with the murder of Almand Vadeboncoeur of Woonsocket, by poisoning, was the writing which appeared on the wrapper of the package which contained the poisoned puffs.

Both witnesses identified specimens of Mrs. Oakley's hand writing, one of which was written by her at the request of Chief Coe of the Woonsocket police, the other written on the wrapper of the "death" package.

They both stated that the two specimens were the work of one person, adding that it was a feeble disguise.

EXPERTS AGREE.

Mr. Clarke said:

"The writing which appears on the wrapper, and the writing which Mrs. Oakley did for Chief Coe is without any question the same. The only difference in a very feeble attempt to disguise the writing by using the most common of disguises, the back-hand."

Mr. Clarke then described to the jury just what individual characteristics appeared in both specimens.

"I have based my opinion on the

SENATE VOTES ON BRANDEIS TODAY

Washington, June 1.—The Senate today will write the last chapter in the controversy over President Wilson's nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to the Supreme Court bench. At 4:55 o'clock this afternoon the Senate will go into executive session, receive the reports and minority reports on Brandeis from the Judiciary Committee and then vote. Indications are that the whole proceeding will not last more than fifteen minutes and that Brandeis will be confirmed by about a dozen votes.

National Committee Takes Action on G. O. P. Convention Contests

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of Republican National Committee, at left, and James B. Reynolds, secretary of the committee.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, June 1.—The machinery of the Republican National Convention was started here today. The national committee began its work of making up the temporary roll for the convention which will assemble next Wednesday at noon. For the first time in more than twenty years the contests were comparatively unimportant.

They dealt chiefly with personal questions peculiar to the localities from which they sprang, and in no instance were expected to have any serious effect on the political fortunes of any candidate for the Presidential nomination.

The contrast between today's meeting and that of four years ago was strongly marked. Then the auditorium chamber of the national committee room was jammed with a seething mass of excited delegates and their friends, all demanding the opportunity to present their case to the committee.

The committee itself was divided in loyalty to William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt, and strong language was the rule from the outset today. The overwhelming demand was for harmony. The committeemen dis-

GIRL OF 19 DIES IN SUICIDE PACT

Providence, R. I., June 1.—James O'Brien, detained by the police as a result of the death from a revolver wound of Beatrice Walter, a nineteen-year-old Toronto avenue girl, today told Chief Inspector O'Neill, that he and the girl had formed a suicide pact.

He said that he and the girl were walking together, talking things over, and that finally he drew his revolver from his pocket and said to her:

"Let's die together."

She took the weapon, he said,

WAITE DIES WEEK OF JULY 10

Poisoner Before Being Sentenced Makes Dramatic Speech; Eager to Give Up Life in Expiation

By International News Service.

New York, June 1.—Receiving his death sentence in the same unflinching manner as when he heard the jury's verdict of guilty, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite was today sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison during the week beginning July 10.

The condemned man made a dramatic speech in court today.

"I am glad, very, very glad that I can give my life in expiation in some small way for the things that I have done," said Waite before Justice Shearn sentenced him.

"I regret that I have nothing more than my life that I can give. I also freely give my soul for the same purpose, and I hope that it may go on and serve forever in any way that there may be for it to purge itself."

COMPOSED THROUGHOUT.

Waite spoke with strong tones and clear enunciation, heard plainly throughout the large room. He was one of the most composed men present. When Justice Shearn asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced there was silence for a brief space.

Then the convicted slayer began his dramatic recital.

"I would just like to say that I want to thank this court for the very fair and just trial that was accorded to me," Waite continued. "I also want to say that I believe that the prosecutor, Mr. Brothers, was very conscientious in doing his duty and at the same time very fair to me.

"Also that my own counsel was always kind and above reproach and entirely sincere in his belief in regard to me."

As soon as Waite had finished Justice Shearn pronounced sentence.

Walter R. Deuel, Waite's counsel, made the usual motions for a new trial and for a dismissal. He has not filed any notice of appeal, but will do so within the ten days' limit.

TAKEN TO SING SING.

Immediately after the proceedings Deputy Sheriff Burke snapped the handcuffs on Waite's wrist and on his own. Waite walked with firm stride and a long swing. With one keeper accompanying him, the deputy sheriff put his prisoner in a wagon and drove to the Grand Central Station. They took the 11:07 train for Sing Sing, where Waite will be lodged in the death house.

Waite sat up until after midnight last night reading the Bible and writing a note to Dr. Pryor. The latter was in a cell adjoining Waite's before the latter's trial and after conditional talks with Waite gave valuable information to the District Attorney.

Waite wrote to him:

"I understand that you have been criticised by fellow prisoners for any part you may have taken against me in my trial. I don't believe my forgiveness is necessary, because I feel that anyone who was against me was justified."

Waite had a substantial meal this morning and afterward was visited in his cell by his brother Frank.

Manager Stallings received word today of the death of Bud Sharpe, the former Boston player, who was Stallings' right hand man at his plantation near Haddock, Ga.

FIRST GAME.

FIRST INNING

Braves—Maranville walked. Evers hit to Deubert, whose toss to second was muffed by Olson, and both runners safe. Olson made a rank fumble of Collins' bounder, Maranville scoring. A passed ball advanced both runners. Magee walked, filling the bases. A pass to Konetchy forced Evers across the plate. Smith hit to Mowrey, who tossed Collins out at the plate. Wilhoit fanned. Gowdy singled to left, scoring Magee and Konetchy and putting Smith on third. Gowdy out trying to steal, Meyers to Cutshaw to Olson. FOUR RUNS.

Dodgers—Ragan threw out Myers. Magee made a nice running catch of

Gardner Denies Owning Interest in War Plants

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—Rising to a question of personal privilege in the House today, Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts emphatically denied that he was financially interested in munitions plants which would benefit by reason of the vigorous preparedness propaganda.

Representative Gardner took exception to an article in a German-American publication charging that he held securities of the General Electric Company, which were largely increased in value because of war orders given that concern.

The Massachusetts representative declared he disposed of all of his General Electric holdings in August, 1915, just as soon as he found out that the concern had received war orders.

WATSON AND CURLEY NEAR AUTO CRASH

Jerry (James A.) Watson and Mayor Curley came near colliding in their autos early today. Watson says: "I was driving my driver along the Jamaicaway this morning when a big car approached from the opposite direction. I thought the opposite car would turn one way and I expected the driver of the other car thought I would turn the other way. We were both going fast, but of course not breaking the law. Well, we almost collided, but we didn't. When the dust settled, I saw the other car was the Mayor's car and the Mayor himself was in it. No damage."

TO ASK REICHSTAG FOR GREAT CREDIT

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, June 1.—A new vote of credit for $2,500,000,000 will soon be moved in the Reichstag, although the government has enough cash on hand to carry on the war for some time, according to the Vossische Zeitung.

50 TEAMSTERS AT HAMILTON STRIKE

Between fifty and sixty teamsters employed by T. A. Moynahan, a contractor, at Hamilton, went on strike today demanding an eight-hour day and $2.50 for the lay, instead of a nine-hour day and $2.25.

RENOMINATION IS SOUGHT BY LODGE

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge received renomination papers from Secretary of State Langtry's office today.

WILSON REJECTS CARRANZA APPEAL

By Internation al News Service.

Washington, June 1.—Announcement was made at the White House today that President Wilson, after reading Carranza's note, has decided that the American forces cannot be withdrawn from Mexico at this time. It was further stated that a note to this effect, with the reasons for the decision, will be sent to the Carranza government shortly.

White House officials explained that the President has decided that the object of the punitive expedition, which was to disperse all the bandit bands operating in Northern Mexico, has not been accomplished. Until this is done, the American forces will not be recalled.

The note to be sent to Carranza, it was stated, will emphasize that this government has no ulterior motives in keeping its forces on Mexican soil. It will plainly state that the sole object of the expedition is to suppress outlawry, and as soon as that is accomplished the troops will be withdrawn.

The note also will make it very plain that if the de facto government employs its troops in running down the bandits that the stay of the American troops thus will be necessarily shortened.

Secretary of State Lansing will begin work on the note immediately. If possible, it is planned to have a rough draft of it prepared in time for it to be considered at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting.

Latest War Bulletins

Berlin, June 1 (via Sayville).—Emperor William has returned to Berlin from Germany's great headquarters. He held a conference with the Spanish Ambassador, Dr. Polo De Bernabe, during the morning.

Geneva, June 1.—Austro-Hungarian troops are reported to have left for the Verdun front to reinforce the Germans. They are supported by many big guns.

Amsterdam, June 1.—Food riots have broken out in Cologne, Germany. The German government has prohibited the export of foodstuffs.

TRENCHES TAKEN BY FRENCH

By International News Service.

Berlin, June 1.—French troops have captured 400 yards of the Germans first line trenches northeast of Le Mort Homme on the Verdun front, says the official statement of the War Office today. East of Obersept, in the Vosges, the Germans have penetrated French positions over a front of 250 yards.

The French positions entered by the Germans covered a depth of 300 yards. Instead of attempting to hold the captured ground the German detachment returned to the German lines with some prisoners and booty.

Violent counter attacks were made by the French last night in the triangle formed by Dead Man's Hill, Cumieres and Chattancourt. It was then that the French were able to advance.

Heavy artillery fire is reported from the Lens front, where the Germans are engaged with the British.

French Repulse German Attacks

By CHARLES P. BERTELLI.

Paris, June 1.—Another attempt by the Germans to carry by storm the French positions at Le Mort Homme (Dead Man Hill) was made last night.

Although preceded by a furious bombardment, which battered the French trenches into a shapeless mass, and which was carried out with the utmost stubbornness, the assault was repulsed.

Announcement of the failure of the German effort last night was made in the official communique of the French War Office today.

While the German infantry was engaged west of the Meuse most of the French lines on the Douaumont front to the east of the river were under hot artillery fire.

Practically all the German guns northwest of Verdun were concentrated upon a short target approximately two miles broad. The shells fell with less than a second's time between them. The entire French line, comprising both first and second line trenches were smothered beneath the tempest of steel.

The text of the official communique follows:

"On the left bank of the Meuse, the bombardment continued with great violence in the course of the night in the region of Le Mort Homme. An attack by the Germans yesterday evening about 8 o'clock against our positions on the sloped east of the hill was completely repulsed by our fire.

"On the right bank the artillery duel has assumed a character of intense violence west and east of Fort Douaumont.

"The night was relatively calm on the rest of the front.

"Last night one of our aviation squadrons threw twenty bombs on the stations at Thionville and Audunieres-sur-Meuse, and fifty shells on the supply depot at Azannes."

WAR SUMMARY

The greatest battle in history, and the battle that will probably hasten the ultimate decision in this war by many months—the battle at Verdun—has passed its hundredth day.

And there is "nothing to report" from it. The struggling lines are still swaying back and forth from Dead Man's Hill southward, the French yesterday reporting the loss of trenches, today reporting the repulse of attacks.

Austrian pressure on the Italian lines defending the Vicenza plain has resulted in fresh gains, and the ends of the Italian defensive line at Asiago and Arsiero are each now enveloped on two sides. It seems probable that this line will be forced in the near future, unless a general offensive by the allies forces the Teutons to rearrange their troops to meet the new attacks.

Outside of these two theatres of war, there were no events of importance.

BRITISH BOMBARD GREEK SEAPORT

ATHENS, June 1.—British warships have bombarded the Greek port of Nauplia. Part of the city was destroyed by fire. The Greek government has protested to the allied governments.

The French have occupied Porto, northeast of Lake Doiran.

French aeroplanes have bombarded the German and Bulgarian encampments at Gievgueli. There were numerous casualties.

Expect Early Fall of Two Italian Cities

By International News Service.

Vienna, June 1.—Military critics predict that the Italian cities of Arsiero and Asiago will soon be in the hands of the Austro-Hungarians, although they warn the people not to expect too much of the army of invasion of Italy because of the natural obstacles which have to be overcome.

The Arsiero-Asiago line is strongly fortified by the Italian force and batteries command the mountain defiles through which the Austro-Hungarians have to pass. In addition to being exposed to the open fire of the Italians the Teutonic forces have to surmount mountain barriers which form natural defences for the Italian troops.

Heavy guns which were carried to the front under the utmost difficulties are bombarding the Italian lines night and day. When the invaders get by the Arsiero-Asiago line they will have penetrated the last formidable obstacle between them and the Vicenza plain.

The Austrian War Office estimates that the Italians massed six divisions (120,000 men) on the narrow front between the Adige and Sugana valleys to impose the Austrian advance. Prisoners have been taken from the 27th, 5th, 25th, 34th and 15th Italian divisions. These include the Mantova, Turin, Roo, Sesia, Novara, Gaglian, Angona, Ivrea, Lambro, Salerno, Siena and other brigades.

In addition there were Alpine battalions and several territorial and Phanceiri battalions, making a total force of six divisions.

AUSTRIANS TRY TO OUTFLANK ITALIANS

By International News Service.

Rome, June 1.—South of the Posina River and west of Arsiero the Austro-Hungarian army is making desperate attacks in an effort to outflank the Italians defending the Arsiero-Asiago position. Severe losses have been inflicted upon the Teutons who attacked on the mountain slopes in mass form. The massed batteries of the Italians dropped curtains of drum fire on the attacking forces that wiped out whole companies.

Dispatches from Udine say that artillery duels are in progress along the Isonzo River and in the Carnic Alps, but the Austrians seem to have weakened their lines there for no infantry attacks followed the cannonade.

A battle which opened on Tuesday night on the line between Costiuzza and Monte Cengio for positions held by the Italians in the districts of Monte Fumbio, Fornilati and Priafora is still in progress. Dispatches from Vienna say that the carnage among the Austro-Hungarian troops equalled that inflicted upon the Germans at Verdun.

Thousands of Austrian dead lie unburied upon the slopes of Monte Fosmilo, Monte Costiuzza and the Buole Pass.

Alpine troops distinguished themselves by their valiant defence of the Italian positions in the region of Seghi di Campigoni and Priafora in the face of terrific artillery fire. The Italians were finally withdrawn from these exposed positions, but they were held long enough to enable the main forces to re-establish new lines.

On Corbin plateau the Austrians have bombarded the Italian positions incessantly for six days and six nights.

BRITISH EXPECT SUB-SEA TRADERS

London, June 1.—The feasibility of German submarine merchant fleet is not discounted in naval circles here. On the contrary, there is believed to be no reason why it should not be attempted. It is even suggested that Prince von Buelow, if he desires to go upon a mission to the United States, as rumored recently, may cross the Atlantic in a submarine, which would achieve a spectacular effect. He would also avoid the risk of refusal of a safe conduct by the British.

ALLIES ADVANCE ON BULGARIAN BORDER

By International News Service.

Sofia, via Berlin Wireless, June 1.—For two months, Anglo-French troops have been advancing slowly through Greek Macedonia toward the Bulgarian border, it was officially announced today by the Bulgarian war office.

It was in order to prevent the invasion of Bulgaria that Bulgar troops crossed the Greek border and occupied three forts on Struma Ridge. The following official report was given out:

"For two months Anglo-French troops have been moving from their fortified camp at Salonika toward the Bulgarian frontier. The main force of the enemy occupies a front from the Vardar valley to the Struma valley across Ivove Tepe and westward in the districts of Suborsko, Vodena and Florina.

"Part of the reorganized Serbian army has been landed at Salonika.

"For a month there have been daily artillery duels on the Gievgelli-Torran front, but at no point have the allies been able to cross the border.

"In the village of Gorni a French force was put to flight by our troops."

COTTON REPORT GIVES CROP 77.5

Washington, June 1.—The crop reporting board of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, Department of Agriculture, today estimated that the condition of the cotton crop on May 25 was 77.5 per cent. of a normal, as compared with 80 on May 25, 1915, 74.3 on May 25, 1914, 79.1 on May 25, 1913, and 78.8, the average of the past ten years, on May 25.

WOMAN WINS $500 AWARD FROM DOCTOR

Miss Susan Kerrigan of Brookline was awarded a verdict of $500 by a jury in the Norfolk Superior civil court in Dedham today against Dr. Charles G. Cumston of Boston. She sued for $10,000 for alleged damages caused by the defendant in carelessly setting her right ankle so that it had to be reset.

Report Irish Rebel Leaders Have Escaped to the United States

London, June 1.—Several leaders of the Irish Sinn Feiners wanted in connection with the recent uprising have escaped from the British Isles to the United States, it is stated in a dispatch from Athlone to the Globe today. Among them was Captain Merlove, leader of the anti-government forces in Galway.

Approximately 800 of the prisoners captured by the British military forces during the uprising in Ireland have been released, it was announced in the House of Commons today by Premier Asquith. The premier stated that all the rest of the prisoners, except those who actually took part in fighting, will be released as soon as possible.

"Sessions of the court-martial will not be continued any longer than absolutely necessary," said Mr. Asquith. "I am sure no substantial injustice has been done up to date."

Despite the announcement of the government press bureau that the report of a reconciliation between the hostile political factions in Ireland was premature, the utmost hopefulness was felt today. The press regards the situation in Ireland as more satisfactory than at any time since the Sinn Feiners rose in revolt in Dublin.

David Lloyd George, the pacificator, has held conferences with John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, and Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, and that he has made progress towards the pacification of the island is evident.

It was reported that King George has been advised to go to Ireland. Many persons believe that a visit of the King would arouse the loyalty of the people and go far toward allaying the high feeling which naturally accompanied the insurrection.

LIEUTENANT THAW'S RECOVERY SLOW

Paris, June 1.—Lieutenant Thaw's wound, being treated at the American Ambulance, proves more serious than was thought. He is unlikely to return to the front before two months. A bullet entered his arm just above and behind the elbow and came out underneath the forearm, splintering the principal bone. The doctors hope to avert permanent stiffness.

600 SHORE LINE CAR MEN GO ON STRIKE

New London, Ct., June 1.—All the lines of the Shore Line Electric Railway Company from New Haven to Westerly, R. I., and from this city north to West Thompson, Ct., were at a standstill today as a result of the strike of 600 motormen, conductors, power house men and barn men, which began at midnight.

All the local lines are tied up by the strike, and hundreds walked to work, while hundreds of jitneys running over the city car lines, did a land office business.

CHILD DIES 'TWICE' IN HOSPITAL

Seven-year-old Mary Conte, victim of an automobile accident, died at the City Hospital today after she had been reported dead the evening before while surgeons were working over her.

The child's death today fell with added force upon her parents, whose hopes for her survival had been raised when they learned that the first report of her death was wrong.

The news also came as a second shock to Melvin J. First of No. 113 Hancock street, Dorchester, driver of the auto truck which struck the child.

First was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and was held in $1,000 bail when the police were told last night that Mary was dead. At midnight First learned that the child was living and that the charge against him had been lessened to one of assault and battery.

When Mary died today the police arranged to restore the manslaughter charge against First.

Mary, whose parents live at No. 151 Albany street, was struck by the auto truck as she was crossing Broadway extension in company with six-year-old Anna Kolley. Her skull was fractured, and she received other injuries.

The police say that after the child had been taken to the hospital someone at the hospital gave out a report that she had died between 6 and 7 o'clock. The error was not corrected until about three hours later.

RECORD REDUCTION IN STATE TAXATION

The present Legislature has brought about the largest State tax reduction in the history of the Commonwealth, according to a statement made on the floor of the House today by Representative Joseph E. Warner of Taunton.

Representative Warner, who is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, announced that the State tax this year will be $8,000,000, as compared to $9,750,000 last year.

His statement was greeted with cheers by the members of the House, who unanimously rose to their feet as evidence of their appreciation.

Boston's share in the State tax is $2,344,240, as compared to $3,297,750 last year. Representative Warner believes that the tax rate in cities and towns should drop forty cents as a result of the reduction in the State tax.

"The reduction in the State tax," he told the AMERICAN, "was accomplished by careful scrutiny of every appropriation bill that came before the Committee on Ways and Means, by rejecting unnecessary appropriations and by paring down those that seemed necessary.

"None of the State institutions will suffer—in fact, many will receive more money than a year ago."

A number of Boston's sub-debutantes will participate in the Bird Masque pageant to be given tomorrow and Saturday at "Southwood," the Brookline estate of Mrs. Barthold Schlesinger.

The pageant, written by Percy Mackaye, poet and playwright, is given under the auspices of the Suffrage Association and the National Bird Sanctuary Associates, will be directed by Miss Katherine Manahan and a company of New York professional players.

The sub-debutantes will masquerade as birds of various descriptions, and a feature of the pageant will be a solo rendered by Miss Mary Wolston, who has charge of the dancing numbers. Miss Wolston, who is a former Boston girl and a graduate of Quincy Mansion School at Wollaston, believes that interpretative dancing is one of the highest and as yet least appreciated of the arts, and that its possibilities are unlimited.

WILL DANCE ON LAWN.

She declares that if not overdone it makes the performer stronger and sounder physically, and tends to make a person graceful.

"Southwood" was chosen for the play following the announcement that the James Russell Lowell estate in Cambridge was quarantined on account of scarlet fever. Fifty per cent. of the proceeds will go toward the cause of bird conservation and the remainder will be used for State suffrage work.

Dancing on the lawn and the serving of refreshments will follow the presentations tomorrow evening and Saturday afternoon.

Those in charge of the entertainment are Mrs. Benjamin W. Pitman, chairman; Mrs. Charles W. McDermott, treasurer; Mrs. Frederick M. Milliken, secretary. Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, chairman of the stage setting; Mrs. Follen Cabot, Jr., chairman of the ballet; the Misses Katherine Dorr, Winifred Bowditch, Ruth McCall and Elizabeth Jones, ballet captains, and Mrs. T. Lovell Little, chairman of the social dancing.

MANY PROMINENT DANCERS.

Mrs. Lewis J. Johnson, wife of Professor Johnson of Harvard, is president of the Cambridge Political Association, which will have charge of the refreshments.

Among the society sub-debutantes who will appear as thrushes and other birds are the Misses Elizabeth Jones, Pauline Jones, Dorothy Dewey, Estelle Davis, Priscilla Bigelow, Marion Barrie, Marilla Jewell, Elizabeth Bell, Laura Patterson, Frances Hartwell, Emily Williams, Madeline Carter, Anna Ward, Barbara Hersey, Constance James, Ina Bentley and Felicia Doughty.

BOSTON SHIP AFIRE OFF AFRICAN COAST

Lourenco Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, June 1.—The steamer City of Savannah, from Calcutta, May 11, for Boston and New York, has arrived here with her foremold on fire. The vessel's mishap is serious.

Bee Thief and the Owner are 'Stung' As Theft Result

Brockton, June 1.—For stealing 3,000 bees and 15 pounds of honey, Powell Smith of Cleveland avenue was "stung" $25 in the local police court today.

Edward H. Prize of No. 60 Vermont avenue, owner of the bees, was also "stung," as the insects have mysteriously disappeared.

According to Mr. Prize, Smith visited his home on May 11 and asked for the loan of two bees. He said that one of his daughter's eyes was discolored and swollen underneath, and that he had heard the sting of a bee would reduce the swelling. The witness, who has several large hives, placed two bees in a bottle and gave them to Smith, who went away protesting his gratitude.

The next day Prize said Smith returned, this time carrying a bag. Going to one of the hives Smith is alleged to have taken three frames, containing 1,000 bees each, and a quantity of honeycomb, all of which he placed in the bag and walked away.

Smith paid the $25 fine and insisted to Judge Reed that he did not now where the bees were at that time.

Mayor and O'Hearn Both to Drive in Dorchester Race

Mayor Curley and Building Commissioner Patrick F. O'Hearn will be the feature card in a list of fifteen entries at the horse racing exhibition to be held on Dorchester Day, Saturday, at the Franklin Field Speedway, under the auspices of the Dorchester Gentlemen's Driving Club.

The race promises to be a thriller. Last year the Mayor's horse won out by a nose. This year Commissioner O'Hearn states that he has caught on to the Mayor's tricks on the track and will give him a still closer run. There is a handsomely engraved cup for the winner of this special race and both men are eager to claim it.

Mayor Curley will drive "Alfred King," owned by Thomas J. Griffin, the builder, and owner of one of the fastest horses on the circuit. Commissioner O'Hearn will guide "Hawkins," owned by A. J. Furnish, and considered one of the best in these parts.

ASKS $40,000 FOR 7,200-VOLT SHOCK

Exeter, N. H., June 1.—A suit for $40,000, brought by Robert J. Ballard of Portsmouth against the Exeter & Hampton Company, for alleged negligence in installing a street wire was begun here today. Ballard claims he came in contact with the wire carrying 7,200 volts, last year and that he received a painful shock.

PHYLLIS SEARS GIVEN BLOCK ON BOWERY

New York, June 1.—Miss Phyllis Sears of Beverly, Mass., one of the wealthiest women in New England, has been presented by his father, Herbert M. Sears, the old four-story building at No. 258 Bowery, adjoining the southeast corner of Fourth street.

The transfer of the property was recorded in the register's office, showing, however, that the gift was deeded to his daughter on April 3.

Miss Sears is twenty-one. Her New York real estate adds $250,000 to her wealth, as that was the assessed valuation on the Bowery parcel last year.

GERMANY EAGER FOR PEACE; TERMS OF KAISER OUTLINED

By A. F. BEACH.

International News Service Staff Correspondent. Who Has Just Returned From Berlin.

New York, June 1—Germany is ready for peace.

If Germany could do that, what the nation most wishes to do, the war would stop, more would be stopped, words would be squelched and hate drawn.

Recent reports from London, Paris and Berlin indicate as much, and they could be believed. But frequently these reports, or at least those emanating from London and Paris, either run with the idea that Germany wishes peace or add that the German spirit is broken and that the war is fathered by economic conditions which, once gone, leave the enemy enough stomach craving to stop the loss in supplication.

HAYS SELLED REPORTS.

Such reports should not be believed, for the figures do not sustain them. Belief in such reports is a serious mistake in the path of peace, because later more are raised and one or all these reports have served only to the illusion is again dispelled by the knowledge is correspondingly intact and strong.

So far from the German is satisfied with the war and thoroughly nourished for Winter, with as much nourishment as he absorbed the last Winter—which, for the time being at least, removes food as a peace dictator.

GERMAN SPIRIT UNBROKEN.

I left Berlin three weeks ago after a stay in Germany of about a month during which time I visited every one of the Central Alliance powers, spent time at the principal fronts and had more than ordinary facilities as I observing what German officials are doing and what further points are thinking.

In the first place, the German spirit is in no sense broken. The German is sufficiently eager for peace to fight for it. But he will not ask for it.

The German firmly believes that he is making a war of self-defense.

In the beginning it was said that Germany was making war of conquest. That was when I was in Germany; the German did not believe this, nor does he believe it now.

GERMANS KEEP UP FIGHT.

The fact is important, because his enemies attribute motives of conquest to the German and fight him accordingly.

His enemies go further, and declare his empire must be conquered to preclude another attempt at conquest, whereas the German in the field and the German back home say: "All right, come ahead. But you must first drive us out of your territory and then whip us in our own."

Perhaps the whole fact has done as much to keep the fighting alive in the German as the repeated declarations of Premier Asquith that the British sword will never be sheathed until Prussian militarism is destroyed, and the smaller nations are secured against destruction by their bigger brothers.

HAVE FAITH IN CHANCELLOR.

This determination makes no impression on the German mind and only stimulates his heart. For Prussian militarism is himself and he scoffs at any British concern for the smaller nations as the rankest kind of hypocrisy.

Furthermore, the German has been told by his Chancellor that Germany is not fighting for more territory and he believes it.

I heard von Bethmann-Hollweg, speaking in the Reichstag put all the vigor of huge frame and his bass voice into the assurance that Germany was fighting for nothing but national safety.

The Chancellor has likewise expounded the same policy to me in private conversation, as have other German statesmen.

The fact is the German believes he is fighting for no cause whatever other than his own safety. And in this belief, and the fighting stamina which backs it, is to be found the essence of the German peace program as it shapes itself at the present in the German mind.

TELLS OF PEACE IDEAS.

The reader may take these German peace ideas, balance them with the aims of the entente powers and reckon for himself the prospects of an actual peace.

Belgium and Poland are at once the problems foremost in the German mind that thinks of peace.

The German declares that he will not under any circumstance evacuate Belgium until he is given sufficient guarantees that Belgium is not to become a vassal State to England, or an active or passive ally of England.

He also declares that he never will give up Poland until it is made sure that Poland is absolutely independent, or governed in some manner by Germany or Austria to insure its position as an effective buffer state between Germany and Russia.

SAY RUSSIA STARTED WAR.

As for Poland, the German is determined once and for all time to put a barrier between himself and Russia.

The reasoning behind this determination is not difficult to follow. The German declares Russia alone of the powers actively incited Servia to stand out against the Austrian demands and meantime mobilized on the German frontier.

Of extreme importance in this connection is the fact that there are 4,000,000 men in uniform in Germany who have not yet seen any front.

Coupled with the statement that every warring nation is actively working toward peace, Secretary Baker's prediction was taken to mean he believes peace will come before November.

The statements of the Secretary were understood to foreshadow what he will say Thursday when he delivers the keynote speech before the State Democratic Convention at Columbus.

"Today, with every nation looking for peace, the United States is looked to as the arbitrator of peace and the friend of all the contestants," said Secretary Baker. "Not to the head of any other neutral nation—not even to the Pope—are these nations looking. They are looking to President Wilson, and when the war is over they will be ready to sit down WITH HIM AT THE HEAD OF THE TABLE."

Wilson to Sit at Head of Peace Table Soon, Says Secretary Baker

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

Cleveland, O., June 1—Before election there will be a "triumphant demonstration of the value of the Wilson administration's moral neutrality," Secretary of War Baker told 200 Cleveland Democrats.

Coupled with a statement that every warring nation is actively working toward peace, Secretary Baker's prediction was taken to mean he believes peace will come before November.

The statements of the Secretary were understood to foreshadow what he will say Thursday when he delivers the keynote speech before the State Democratic Convention at Columbus.

"Today, with every nation looking for peace, the United States is looked to as the arbitrator of peace and the friend of all the contestants," said Secretary Baker. "Not to the head of any other neutral nation—not even to the Pope—are these nations looking. They are looking to President Wilson, and when the war is over they will be ready to sit down WITH HIM AT THE HEAD OF THE TABLE."

ASSERT WOMAN ADDRESSED POISON

possession of many individual characteristics, continued Mr. Darke. "Many letters are identically the same, connections are very similar, and the only disguise is the back hand writing. That is always used by a person who is desirous of hiding his identity."

Frederick Bowman, who said he was a handwriting expert for twenty years, corroborated Mr. Darke's testimony. Bowman said that he had the writing on the package which contained the deadly pills was similar to that of a person who did some engineering work for Chief Counsel Merkel. Bowman, an artist, five nineteen-year-old French girl, who is referred to in the case as "mademoiselle sweetheart" of Irving Cassavant, the man whom Mrs. Oakley says she was to marry, and to whom Mrs. Oakley is alleged to have sent the poisoned pills in the hospital as a result of eating one of the cream puffs, is on the stand when court opens this morning.

She identified that on the night of January 20th, after Henry Cassavant had received the package and eaten the cream puffs, she had had a talk with him by previous appointment and that he handed her the package which contained candy and she was not asked to say detail about the transaction of the wrapper.

GAVE WRAPPER TO POTHIER.

She testified that she gave the wrapper to Octave Pothier, brother to ex-Governor Aram Pothier.

She testified that she was employed as a maid in the ex-Governor's home at the time Cassavant was paying his attention.

Octave Pothier followed her on the stand and testified that he in turn turned the wrapper over to Inspector John Gilchrist of the Woonsocket police.

Chief of Police Fred E. Coe of the Woonsocket police told of getting Mrs. Oakley to write her name and her address for him in his office after she had been apprehended. This specimen of her handwriting, with one obtained from Mrs. Oakley by Chief Inspector Joseph Jolobert, were then used in comparing with the handwriting on the wrapper of the package.

MYSTERY OVER PROVIDENCE GIRL'S DEATH

pressed it to her heart and pulled the trigger.

He then took the gun, he said, and tried to shoot himself, and he showed bullet holes in his shirt and a slight, scraping wound on his abdomen in proof of this statement.

Inspector O'Neill went to the scene of the shooting today and found what he considered were signs of a struggle. The revolver lay in one spot; a box of candy some distance away, and the girls' shoes in a third place. Just what sent her body was found.

PERFORM AUTOPSY.

While he was going over the ground, an autopsy was being performed on the girl's body.

William Larnan told the police today that he and the dead girl were close friends, and that O'Brien was jealous of him. He said the girl pitied O'Brien, because he had lost an arm, but that she had no affection for the man.

O'Brien, who is twenty-one and lives at No. 474 Pine street, went walking with the girl last night. He was next seen at 1:30 this morning, he appeared at the Seventh Precinct police station and said a girl had shot herself in a field at Field's Point, a mile from the State Pier.

Medical Examiner Clifford Griffin, who arrived and examined the body a few minutes later, said he judged the girl had been dead since about 9 o'clock.

QUESTIONED BY POLICE.

O'Brien guided the police to where the body lay, and today he was turned over to Chief Inspector O'Neill. After some questioning he displayed the holes in his shirt and told of his attempt at suicide.

"How did it happen, if the girl killed herself," Inspector O'Neill asked, "that her shoe was found twenty-five feet from her body?"

"After she had shot herself," O'Brien answered, "I picked up her body and tried to carry her to her home, but when I had carried her a little way I had to give up."

Mrs. James Walter, the girl's mother, said:

"O'Brien worked in the same place as my son. I don't believe my daughter had any particular affection for him. She pitied him, because his right arm was cut off above the elbow after being injured in a street car accident several years ago.

"But she was not in love with him, and they did not keep steady company, though they sometimes went walking together in the evening, as they did last night."

REVOLVER WAS HIS.

O'Brien, when further questioned by the police, said the girl told him two weeks ago she was thinking of killing herself.

He admitted that the weapon with which killed the girl was his. He said he was out walking with the girl.

The first he noticed of the death of the girl was when O'Brien calmly entered the Seventh Precinct station and told the policeman in charge that a girl had shot herself in a field at Field's Point.

The police say that O'Brien volunteered to lead officers to the scene. Several policemen were summoned and the police automobile was used to carry O'Brien and the officers to where the body was found.

Miss Walter and O'Brien both worked for the Rueckert Manufacturing Company at No. 164 Clifford street. Employes of this concern whom the police have questioned, say that they had been keeping company for some time.

At Miss Walter's home the police learned that she left there about 8 o'clock this evening to go out walking with O'Brien and a number of friends who have already been questioned declare that they saw the couple together.

Miss Walter is the daughter of Thomas H. Walter, a city inspector of boilers.

British Keep Army at Home, Fearing German Invasion

London, June 1.—The fear of a German invasion of England still hangs over Great Britain. This was made apparent when Premier Asquith in Parliament said the possibility of such an attack made it necessary to keep a larger proportion of trained troops at home than would be the case otherwise.

Premier Asquith argued that the possibility of an invasion must be taken into consideration. Though personally he thought an invasion unlikely, Mr. Asquith said "it was a risk that cannot be left out of account, and we must always effectively provide for it and must be guided by considerations of those who can decide what number of men are absolutely necessary to render the country secure against invasion.

BRITISH ADVANCE IN EAST AFRICA

London, June 1.—The War Office announces that General Smuts, commander of the British column invading German East Africa from the north, has reported that he is advancing down the Pangani river, and has reached the South and Pare mountains. On Monday he located the enemy near Nkoohevi, where he occupied a strong intrenched position in a narrow neck between the mountains.

REFERS TO WILSON AS PONTIUS PILATE

DAVIS IS HELD ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Robert C. Davis, a former patrolman attached to the Quincy station, was held in $500 for the Grand Jury in the Municipal Court today on a charge of assault and battery on sergeant M. C. Brennahan of Police Headquarters. The charge is that Davis pistol-whipped Brennahan on the night of May 20th, after Brennahan had been instrumental in securing his discharge from the department.

CURLEY TAKES HIS FAMILY TO CIRCUS

Mayor Curley took a day off today from his municipal cares and with Mrs. Curley he took his children to the circus. Like most fathers, he said he did it for his children's sake. Last night at 6 to the surprise of all, he decided to go pretty well on his own account.

FITZGERALD ELKS' FLAG DAY ORATOR

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today received and accepted an invitation to be the chief orator at the observance of Flag Day by the Boston Lodge of Elks. The observance will be held at the Parkman band stand, Boston Common. There will be a literary and musical program.

Rich Mexican Tortured by Villa Tells Graphic Story of His Escape

A large number of men fell into the hands of Francisco Villa, the Mexican bandit, during the heyday of his career, but of those who refused to accede to his demands few lived to tell of it.

One man, however, and he the son of one of Villa's most hated enemies, escaped after undergoing horrible tortures, just as the outlaw's executioners were preparing to remove him from their chief's scheme of things.

This man was Don Luis Terrazas, Jr., son of Mexico's richest ranchero, whose holdings before the revolution of his investment territory almost as large as the State of Texas. It was against Don Luis that Villa felt particular hatred, and for years he raided his ranches, murdered his servants and tried unavailingly to capture the ranchero or his son.

In the case of the son he was at length successful, and the story of his capture, torture and escape is grippingly related by the young Mexican in the magazine section of the Sunday AMERICAN for June 4. This story, told by one of the aristocrats of Mexico, who for years has been fighting Villa and his ilk, will throw considerable light on the reason the United States forces have been unable to locate the bandit.

BY WELLESLEY PROFESSOR.

This is but one of the many features with which the magazine section is jammed. Another article, which will prove of absorbing interest to all feminists, and will no doubt start a controversy of far-reaching proportions among Bible students, is entitled "The Epistle to the Hebrews Written by a Woman?"

In this article Professor Eleanor D. Wood of Wellesley College declares she has found evidence that the author of the Epistle, instead of being St. Paul, the stern opponent of female ascendancy, was in reality a pioneer feminist. Professor Wood has made an exhaustive study of Bible matters and is prepared to back up her contention. If she is right, what a blow to those who maintain that woman's place is in the home.

The fall of Nineveh, Tyre and Rome have always been held up as examples of what happens to luxury-loving States. A nation of soft, pampered citizens has always been considered an easy prey for some more hardy race. Now comes His Grace the Duke of Manchester, who in an ingenuous manner argues that those who patronize actors, artists and all the pleasure-giving classes perform a useful function in our social life. The Duke discusses the subject at considerable length in the magazine section, and the article is illustrated by some of the best artists in the country.

20 DRIVEN OUT IN BACK BAY BLAZE

Two children were rescued by an unknown man and eighteen other persons were driven to the street in their night robes during a fire in the four-story apartment house, No. 351 Massachusetts avenue, corner of St. Botolph street, early today.

The fire started from an unknown cause on the top floor, occupied by William A. Gordon and his two sisters, Anna and Mercer. Visiting them was Mrs. James McCool and her two little children, Rodger, one, and Elizabeth, two.

The blaze was discovered by Miss Anna Gordon, who was awakened by the crackling of the flames. She at once aroused the rest of the household. With her two children Mrs. McCool immediately started for the street.

As she groped her way through smoke-filled halls an unknown man, who had rushed in from the street, relieved her of the children and carried them to safety. Mrs. McCool and the Gordons followed close behind.

The occupants of the third floor, Mrs. Carrie V. Sylvester, her two sisters, Elizabeth and Stella Wolf and her brother, Elridge Wolf, escaped by the back stairs. The occupants of the first two floors escaped without difficulty. The damage was estimated by District Chief Walsh at $2,500.

Either they are wrong or— you are missing something

Thousands and thousands of men all over this country—a number bigger than several army corps—have selected Fatimas and stick to Fatimas.

Either these thousands of men are all wrong in their judgment or—you are missing something if you haven't tried Fatimas.

Why not try them?

You will find that Fatimas taste cool and comfortable to the throat and tongue WHILE you are smoking them. And they leave you feeling fine and fit AFTER you smoke them—even though you may smoke more than your usual number.

Is it any wonder men call Fatimas one of the most SENSIBLE cigarettes made? Try them.

SENATE TAKES FIRST STEP TO AIR MUZZLE ON THE PRESS

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—The embarrassing situation that faces the Wilson Administration because of an attempt to force through Congress the press gag section of the postoffice appropriation bill is likely to be dissipated by word from the White House, it was stated today.

Already the first step has been taken in the Senate to air the entire matter in debate. Senator Ashurst of Arizona formally moved to strike from the bill the paragraph curbing free speech.

Other Senators who have become interested in the fight through discussion in the press will support the motion.

One of the hottest fights in the history of the administration is promised unless Democratic leaders accede to the demands of the public for free speech.

President Wilson's attention has been called to the wide criticism that resulted for the Taft Administration because of Postmaster-General Hitchcock's arbitrary rulings against the press during his tenure of office.

CALLED A BLUNDER.

Democrats and Republicans today united in saying that enactment into law of the objectionable clause contained in the bill would be a serious blunder on the part of Wilson leaders. That statement was more pertinent by the fact that it has already been charged that politics plays a large part in the administration wish to control absolutely the distribution of magazines and newspapers.

Debate on Senator Ashurst's motion to strike out was put over until tomorrow by lengthy discussion of the Oregon land act. Its warm support by a majority of the upper house was predicted today.

"It is surprising to me that this section of the postoffice appropriation act passed the House without attention being called to it," said Senator Thomas of Colorado. "I do not believe the Senate wants to ratify any legislation clause that even hints at curbing free speech without an investigation."

Senator Ashurst made his appearance on the floor of the upper house primed with data bearing upon the proposed free speech gag.

WANTS FAIR BEARING.

"It is the right of every publication in the United States to demand fair and equitable treatment at the hands of Congress. To place power to discriminate against one magazine or newspaper in the hands of the Postmaster-General, even though this power were not abused, would be a grave error on the part of the Senate.

"According to my information, enlargement of the present freight mail routes is wished by the Postoffice Department, on the ground of expediency.

"I do not believe there is a publication in the country that is averse to a fair settlement of this question. The main dissent entered by publication interests is against the lodgment of such discretionary power in the person of the Postmaster-General.

"In this they were perfectly right. The mere possibility of misuse of the power conferred upon the Postoffice Department by Section 7 of the present postoffice appropriation bill, should be enough to defeat the objectionable clause.

Magazine and newspapers should not be made subject to the ebb and flow of the political tide. If their shipment by regular mail or by freight is to be discussed and adjusted it should be done before a disinterested commission and after a fair hearing."

Washington, June 1.—The clash between postoffice officials and the Senate Postoffice Committee is expected to reach a climax today. A special sub-committee will lay before Postmaster-General Burleson the testimony taken on the charges of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Blakeslee that the committee "had surrendered to the railroads" in framing the postoffice appropriation bill.

Senators Bankhead and Townsend have arranged for an interview with Mr. Burleson. Afterward the full committee will take action if the Postmaster-General's attitude is not satisfactory.

Information reaching the Capitol is that Mr. Burleson will decline to reprimand his assistant or to ask for his resignation. In that event the committee plans to lay the matter before President Wilson. If no action is forthcoming from him an investigation of the Postoffice Department may be ordered.

'We've Had Many Happy Years of Health By Our Use of Father John's Medicine

A Pure Tonic Food Medicine To Build New Flesh and Strength

Writes the Mother of This Family

"My children used to be troubled with coughs and were weak and run down, but Father John's Medicine made us all happy and healthy, and we have used it for the last fifteen years. Many druggists and people have tried to make me use substitutes, but I never shall as long as Father John's Medicine is sold, as we were blessed with many happy years of health by the use of Father John's Medicine." (Signed) Mrs. Omer Berube, 32 Easton St., Lawrence, Mass.

Because it is pure, wholesome tissue building food, Father John's Medicine is of especial value for people who wish to gain flesh and strength. It nourishes and builds up those who are run down. Being absolutely free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form, it is the safest medicine for all the family to take all the year 'round.—Advertisement.

OFFERS TO PLACE $100,000 ON T. R.

By International News Service.

New York, June 1.—Chester Thompson, a curb market operator, reports that there has been a large amount of betting of even money that Hughes will be nominated by the Chicago convention and to-day he cannot find any evidence of the odds of 5 to 2 against Hughes recently reported. He is ready to take such money offered, he adds.

Thompson quotes 6 to 5 against Roosevelt and also $100,000 to bet on the Colonel at odds of 2 to 1. The odds against Sport are 4 to 1, and Fairbanks is ten to one, while otherwise in the long shot class.

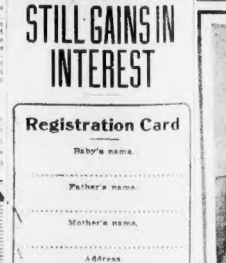
HOLD HAVERHILL MAN IN AUTO CRASH

Haverhill, June 1.—John N. Pappa of Pleasant street is under arrest following an automobile accident in which his car and one owned and operated by Oliver C. Bailey of Vine street were damaged. Pappa was charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Pappa has recently figured in several other accidents. He was to be arraigned in court today.

Dr. Burston Will Recover.

Dr. Bernard E. Burston, the Boston dentist, who was seriously hurt when the motorcycle he was riding by an automobile at York Beach, was brought to this city and is expected to recover.

BABY CONTEST STILL GAINS IN INTEREST



The third week of the AMERICAN'S All-New England Best Baby contest finds interest in the competition still spreading fast among the six New States. With each mail comes another batch of entries to swell the pile on the baby editor's desk.

Up among the hills and valleys of Vermont and New Hampshire are hundreds of boys and girls taking their first peep at the world about them. In Maine are thousands more.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island there is a whole new generation upon whose shoulders industry and government must rest some forty years hence.

The AMERICAN is greatly interested in this coming army of mechanics, bankers, merchants, statesmen, etc., and that parents may be encouraged to make these New England babies the best in the world, prizes are being offered to the best in each State.

There are gold medals for babies who are perfect, or nearly so; silver medals for the next best, and bronze medals for the third class babies.

The contest will last well into June. Every effort will meanwhile be made in seeking out the best babies in New England.

In each edition of the Boston AMERICAN blanks are printed that should be clipped out, filled in with the baby's measurements and then sent to the baby editor, Boston AMERICAN.

All babies between the ages of six months and two years who live outside of Greater Boston are eligible to enter.

Entries are arriving from the southernmost cities, and from the most northerly points in New Hampshire and Vermont.

The baby contests now being conducted by the Hearst newspapers are developing into a tremendous campaign of education. When it is through, no mother should have an excuse for ignorance concerning her baby.

She should know what to feed him, how much sleep he should have, and the best way to make him mind.

Therefore, mothers—and fathers, too—clip a blank from the AMERICAN today and enter your baby in the contest now going on.

One of Best Baby Entrants

GRETNA GREEN IN VERMONT VERY BUSY

Bellows Falls, Vt., June 1.—Dan Cupid's headquarters for New England, in the office of Town Clerk Le S. Hayes, closed one of his busiest months here with a record of ninety-seven marriage licenses issued since May 1.

During the month of April only seventy-three licenses were issued, and of these seventy were to couples who lived outside the State. Only two licenses issued in May were to Bellows Falls couples, the remainder going to what the natives are pleased to term "outsiders."

The eighty-seventh couple to receive a license in May were Robert H. Riley of No. 26 Atlantic street, New Bedford, Mass., and Mary E. Labonte of No. 164 Rockland street, the same city.

RECORD CROWDS ATTEND THE CIRCUS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Some of the best "crowd guessers" in Boston, estimators of long and varied experience, declare their belief that the Memorial Day attendance at the Barnum & Bailey Circus was the largest circus crowd in the history of Boston. The figures are not available, but it may be that, pleased by the establishment of a new record, the count will be announced before Saturday.

The big top is the largest circus tent ever erected, the circus people say, being an eight-master with a seating capacity of 18,000 and room in an emergency for 2,000 more. On Tuesday afternoon it is known to have been packed to capacity. Last night's attendance was approximately 14,000, so that there is quite as good in the circus line as it is in others.

A sensational act increasingly popular as the week goes along is that of the "stars of the Imperial Chinese circus," a gathering of acrobats from far off China. These young men whirl, spin and slide from dizzy heights while hanging by the hair. They were trained, it is apparent, in the days before the Republic, when Chinese wore queues.

The three groups of trapeze performers were received last night with tremendous applause. The "quadrille in the air" by the Siegrist-Silbon troupe, in the center of the tent, is one of the most wonderful—and one of the most dangerous—aerial acts ever seen in New England. But the Patterson troupe, at the upper end of the big top, and the Eugenie troupe, down toward the entrance, work with a speed and a daring which keep the Siegrist-Silbon people on their mettle.

About 50 per cent of the children of Greater Boston have now seen the baby giraffe, the zebras, the elephants, camels, leopards, lions, black bears, Polar bears, rhinoceri, hippopotami and all the other lovely-horrid things of the menagerie.

There are three days left and it is the inalienable right of every Boston small boy to see the circus once every year from peanuts to sideshow.

REFUSE GASOLINE FOR GERARD'S CAR

Amsterdam, June 1.—Dispatch to the London Daily Mail.—Owing to the alarming scarcity of petrol, the German authorities have practically put a stop to the use of motor cars, not only by private individuals, but also by members of the neutral diplomatic corps in Berlin. Some weeks ago Ambassador Gerard applied to the German Foreign Office for permission to buy enough petrol to keep at least one car in service for the ensuing three months. The request was refused.

MRS. LEITER'S SISTER TO WED J. E. PITNEY

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—The first romance of the National Service Camp for Women was revealed in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances Williams to John E. Pitney of Morris town, N. J., nephew of Justice Pitney of the Supreme Court. She is the daughter of Colonel and Mrs. John R. Williams and sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

GRIEF OF PARENTS LAMBERT CASE TRAGEDY, SAYS MISS DIX

By DOROTHY DIX.

Waukegan, Ill., June 1.—It is very dull and monotonous these long Summer days in the courtroom at Waukegan, where they are still vainly trying to get a jury to try William Orpet for the murder of Marian Lambert. The human drama that is being enacted there drags interminably.

Hour after hour the droning voices of the lawyers go on asking talesmen: "Are you opposed to capital punishment?" "Are you prejudiced against circumstantial evidence?" "Have you any opinion in this case? "Do you know what the word hypothetical means?" "Do you know what 'mitigate' means?" "Do you know what 'inherent' means?"

Nearly 300 times have these questions been asked of that many different men, and out of that vast number not a dozen good men and true have answered to them to the satisfaction of the two opposing camps of lawyers.

You wonder as you listen by what occult test and sign jurymen are chosen. Have they a strawberry mark on their arm by which the lawyers recognize that man is proper person for the jury box? Or do the lawyers know by the pricking of their thumbs when the right man comes along?

CURIOUS CROWD HAS THINNED OUT.

Certainly to the onlooker there are no points about the ones that are chosen different from the dozens that are turned away.

The curious crowd in the body of the courtroom has thinned out. The school girls who came to feast their eyes on Orpet during the first two or three days of the trial have dwindled down to a mere handful. Gone is the religious young woman, who felt that she had a mission to convert him, and who insisted on pinning a text on his breast. Gone also is the hysterical maiden who wept aloud at the cruelty of trying for murder a youth with an almost perfect Greek profile.

Orpet, thinner and whiter, and more worn-looking every day, sits in the shadow of his mother and looks more and more like a little child clinging to his mother's skirts. Back of him his father keeps his faithful vigil and over against the further wall Marian Lambert's father waits, patiently and humbly, for the great mill of the law to begin grinding out justice for his little dead girl.

ORPET SHIELDS HIS FACE FROM VIEW.

The reporters' table is littered with old newspapers, a sure sign that there is "nothing doing," and the desk is not cleared for action. About it the reporters whisper, threshing out for the millionth time every possible theory concerning the case and proving and disproving Orpet's guilt in endless arguments.

Orpet sits as close to the reporters' table that he could reach out his hand and touch it, but he never looks at it squarely. He only glances at it furtively from under lowered eyelids when he thinks no one is watching him and then his white, lady-hand goes up between them, shielding his face from view.

One wonders what Orpet is thinking of this reporters' table and the men and women about it, for except for the chance of crime or ill-luck he would have been one of those who write of murder trials instead of the one who is the chief figure in a murder trial and is written about.

COLLEGIAN'S MOTHER ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

For Orpet had chosen journalism as his profession. He had served his apprenticeship as a "cub" reporter last Summer and was taking the course in journalism at the Wisconsin State University at the time that he was charged with having killed Marian Lambert.

One wonders as he sits silent and motionless through the endless hours in court if he thinks he would write this story up if he were reporting it, if he thinks he would be kinder in dealing with the tortured creature who stands at the bar, if he visualizes to himself the phrases in which he would describe such and such a thing the "heat" that he would make on points whose significance the reporters miss.

But however your mind wanders through the long, dull days, it always comes back to the big woman who sits beside Orpet and the bowed, sun-beaten, sandbeaten men against the wall—Orpet's father and Marian Lambert's father, for Orpet's father is often away from the courtroom, and Marian Lambert's mother is so grief-broken that she has never appeared in court except on the first day.

PARENTS ARE THE REAL TRAGEDY OF THE CASE.

These parents are the real tragedy of the case. They are the ones who wring your heart, with pity, for in both cases they are good, honest, simple people to whom the supreme catastrophe has happened. The child they idolized, on whom they built all of their ambitions, in whom their every hope was centered, has failed them, has brought disgrace and disaster upon them.

Yet these parents—and this if what get you until it makes your throat ache—as they sit amidst the ruins of their lives, have not one word of blame for their children, not one reproach. They believe in them still in the face of all the evidence that can be gathered against them.

"I know my boy did not commit this crime. It is impossible for him to have done it, for he is the best son in the world and never gave me a moment's anxiety," says Will Orpet's mother.

"I stake my life that he is innocent," declares his father and they stand by him, sheltering, protecting, defending him, never a thought of what he is costing them.

ORPETS WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR BOY'S SIN.

Yet when this trial is over, no matter if their boy is freed, they will have sacrificed for him all that they have spent their lives in making.

Mr. Orpet is a self-made man, proud as he has a right to be, of the place he has won for himself, of the home he has made for himself, of the little fortune that he and his wife have accumulated by years of hard work and thrift. It will take every dollar of their money to pay lawyers.

Their name has been tarnished and at middle age they must begin again at the bottom as they did in their youth. And all this to pay for a boy's sin.

Marian Lambert's mother still believes her little girl to have been as innocent as she was when she first lay in her mother's arms a babe that came late in life to her parents. She insists, despite all testimony to the contrary, that Marian never cared for Orpet, but that Orpet was mad about her, and that Orpet pursued her with his unwelcome attentions to her death.

WICKED FOLLY BROUGHT ALL HOPES TO NAUGHT

Marian was so pretty, and to give her a better education than she had ever had, to dress her so that she would not be ashamed, and so that she could go with the "nice girls" in school, the mother worked far beyond her strength in a laundry. How she and Marian's father toiled for their girl you have only to look at their bent shoulders and knotted hands to tell.

The Lamberts had built their ambitions and hopes on Marian, even as the Orpets had built theirs upon William. For their children they had struggled and labored and denied themselves, and suddenly all of their sacrifices were vain and their efforts brought to naught by the wicked folly of a girl and boy.

Surely this is the great romance, not the pleading fancy of a man for a maiden, but the enduring passion of parents for their children.

There is no love like that love, for it is the love that never falters, that no disgrace can alienate, that no danger can drive from us, that clings the closer the more others turn away.

There are no dreams like the long dreams that a father and mother dream above their children's head when they see their children achieving the things they never had a chance of doing, enjoying the happiness they missed, having the opportunities that never came to them crowned with the success that was never theirs.

And there is no disappointment so bitter, no heartbreak so utter and complete as when all of these dreams are broken through and the child of so many hopes and prayers proves a shame instead of a glory. That is the sorrow's crown that the elder Orpets and Lamberts wear.

Parents in Orpet Case Wear Sorrow Crown, Says Miss Dix

MISS ANNE MORGAN AGAINST WILSON

St. Louis, June 1.—Miss Ane Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, had written to the Missouri Women's Woodrow Wilson Democratic Club making known her opposition to the principles of the Democratic Party and the renomination of President Wilson. In a letter dated New York, May 15, Miss Morgan declined an honorary membership because "her political opinions neither support President Wilson nor the Democratic Party, and accepting membership in the club would place her in an anomalous position."

CITIZENS TIRED OF WAITING FOR BRYAN

New Orleans, June 1.—Because William J. Bryan refused to go to Laurel, Miss., from Opelika, Ala., to talk today as promised, and because this is the second time he has postponed engagements made with citizens of that town, they notified him by wire that they did not wish him to come at all.

BOWDOIN AGAINST MILITARY COMPANY

Brunswick, Me., June 1.—The Bowdoin College student council has announced that it is opposed to the establishment at Bowdoin of a militia company to be attached to the National Guard of Maine.

NEW WITNESS FOR ORPET BARRED

By RICHARD LEE,
Staff Correspondent Boston American.

Waukegan, Ill., June 1.—The Orpet murder trial lost its newest mystery in a manner itself mysterious when counsel for both sides agreed that Joseph Hartmann, the kidnaped witness, and his wild story, yet untold, should be barred from the case.

Unexplained remarks about a thousand dollar payment added the element of mystery to the official exit of Hartmann, et al. State's Attorney Dady dropped chance words which might be taken to mean that the story involved thousand dollar purchase of testimony.

Both the prosecutor and James H. Wilkerson, chief of counsel for the defence, denied that the talk about a thousand dollars had any such significance. Both as emphatically refused to divulge any of the story on which the court has seen fit to place ban.

COURT BARS STORY.

That Hartmann did claim to have been a close friend of William H. Orpet, the University of Wisconsin student charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, was admitted by all. They confessed that Hartmann's story had been found correct in spots.

For instance, Hartmann in his suppressed story named for the prosecution the mutual friend who described as a marine officer aboard the United States battleship Nevada.

On the other hand Orpet repudiates the Hartmann acquaintance and attorneys have agreed that the unknown story shall not go before the jury, yet to be completed. Furthermore Judge Charles H. Donnelly has approved that agreement of counsel.

The prosecution has delivered to Orpet's counsel a full and complete report on the Hartmann incident, including a transcription of court talks from Hartmann, in Waukegan last Friday. With that delivery the matter has been closed officially.

FAIL TO COMPLETE JURY.

State's Attorney Dady made the admission that he no longer knew where the whereabouts of Hartmann, the witness, who had admittedly been in the State's custody for several days. Later inquiry showed that the Hartmann home on Ellis avenue, Chicago, had been abandoned.

"We have come to the conclusion that Hartmann was smoking some kind of dope when he got up this story," said Attorney Wilkerson.

"How about the telegram reading 'If G. is in the case never mind the letter?'" he was asked.

"The court has forbidden our mentioning any of the facts in the case," he replied.

It was learned that Hartmann had named G. Carlin, investigator employed by the defence, as the mysterious "A" who filed the telegram in Lake Forest the day of the inquest upon Marian Lambert's body. Carlin claims he was not connected with the case at that time.

The examination of prospective jurymin at the last session brought the lawyers no nearer a complete jury than they have been since last Friday. Twice there was a final tender, one way or the other, of the final panel of four only to be torn open by peremptory challenge when completion seemed imminent.

"WOMAN'S BODY" IS BUNDLE OF RAGS

Police headquarters received telephone information at 8 a. m. today that a woman's body was floating in Muddy River in the fashionable Fenway. From Back Bay police station there sallied forth a relief force and equipment, thus: Sergeant Murphy, squad of patrolmen, auto patrol, grapples for dragging the river, searchlight of illumination, etc. Finally they found in the river a bundle of old rags. It may have been the discard from some exclusive housecleaning or somebody's idea of a practical joke.

FALLS INTO DRYDOCK AND BREAKS HIS LEG

Captain Arthur McKinnon of the steamship Prince George, which plies between Boston and Yarmouth, N. S., was found lying unconscious at the bottom of Simpson's dry dock, Marginal street, East Boston, by Watchman David Harrigan.

At the East Boston Relief Station he was found to be suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg.

Captain McKinnon said he was groping his way to his boat in dry dock when he fell from the edge.

MAMMOTH TRAIN OF BERRIES ARRIVES

New London, Ct., June 1.—What is believed to be the largest shipment of strawberries from Maryland to Boston—twenty-four cars—arrived here as a special over the Shore Line road. It arrived in Boston at 5 o'clock this morning. The freight rate runs from $155 to $265 per car.

Learn about the thousand uses for Gas—save, efficient, convenient and economical.

The Economy of Gas Cooking

THE recent advance in the Spring prices of anthracite coal in Boston suggests a comparison with gas.

Since 1905 coal has advanced $1.00 per ton in Boston, while gas has been reduced 20 cents per thousand feet.

Eleven years ago 6750 feet of gas could be bought for the cost of one ton of coal.

Today 9687 feet of gas can be bought for the cost of one ton of coal.

The following table tells the story why gas is today cheaper than coal for cooking.

Coal and Gas Prices in Boston Compared

	1905	1916
Price of Gas per 1000 feet	$1.00	$ .80
Price of coal per ton	$6.75	$7.75
Amount of Gas Equivalent to the Cost of one ton of Coal	6750 ft.	9687 ft.
Change in relative price in favor of gas		43%

Why wait any longer before changing that Coal Stove for a Gas Stove?

Hill's Son, Yale Graduate, Takes Up Father's Sceptre as Western Railroad King

New York, June 1.—Louis W. Hill who succeeds his father as railroad emperor of the Northwest, and stands at his father's bier: "As long as the railroads give good service, so long will railroads have good credit, and as long as the railroads have good credit, Wall Street will come here to St. Paul to serve that credit."

The "Wall Street" meant by Mr. Hill is not a narrow canyon in lower New York from Trinity Church to the East River. It is not a place at all. It is an element in the community, an element found in every city in the country where there are investors and banks with large deposits.

Mr. Hill's railroad was built by investors of many States and many foreign countries. They advanced the money because they had confidence in James Jerome Hill, afterward Lord Strathcona. Banking syndicates backed, but they did not create, and they never controlled, this great railroad property.

SON A TALE MAN.

Louis W. Hill is forty-four years old. After leaving Yale he worked four years at $75 a month, learning as clerk and mechanic his father's road. He will now become chairman of the board of the Great Northern Railway, with 8,061 miles; of the Northern Pacific Railway, with 6,461 miles, and of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, with 9,559 miles; total, 24,081 miles.

This is the largest railroad system in mileage under a single control in the world since Harriman's Pacific system was dismembered by the United States government.

What is a large sense young Hill cannot succeed his father, for his father was a prophet, a seer, a poet of imagination, a human dynamo in energy, a financial genius and a man who learned by toil and hardship and want how to control, first himself, then others, finally the world, none of which never did. That is now his misfortune.

DYNASTIES NOT PERPETUAL.

Great railroad men, like poets are born, not made.

No railroad dynasty has ever been successfully handed down in the United States from father to son.

Thomas A. Scott, creator of the Pennsylvania System and the greatest railroad operator of his time, could find neither a son capable of succeeding him.

Commodore Vanderbilt, creator of the New York Central System, left a very able son, W. H. Vanderbilt.

But it was his arbitrary control, his inability to understand public sentiment and the way the railroads affect the public interests that aroused such widespread hostility to all railroads and involved him in a sea of troubles.

Even in answering an interrogation as to how the public would be affected by his plans W. K. Vanderbilt is said to have uttered a phrase that became world-famous: "The public be damned! Can't railroad owners do what they like with their own property?"

GOVERNMENT STEPS IN.

This answer, spoken in 1885, more than anything else, perhaps, aroused public opinion so that the very next Congress enacted in 1887 the first interstate commerce act, putting all interstate railroads under government control.

The next generation of Vanderbilts did not control the so-called "Vanderbilt" roads, as autocratically as the Hill and the Gould ..nd other systems were by one-man power. But the late Cornelius Vand ..bilt, who succeeded his father, gave the most painstaking thought and labor to the development of the pro..rty and was deeply religious in looking after the welfare of young employes.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who succeeded him, sought the aid of the ablest railroad men he could find, and to his own extraordinary good taste and judgment are due the colossal new terminal and Park avenue improvements in New York City. But the administration of a great property is no longer under the dominion of a single master mind, as Hill's roads were, or Harriman's, or Jay Gould's or the late "Tom" Scott's.

SONS ARE LESS WILLING.

Jay Gould was not a born railroad man, but he was a born financier and speculator, and he had the talent to select able partners and aids, like Russell Sage and Sidney Dillon. He controlled the Union Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, the Texas & Pacific, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, the Wabash, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Manhattan Elevated and the Western Union Telegraph Company. He left no able son.

But George Gould was unwilling to give his days and nights to the onerous, unremitting toil indispensable to successful management of so many properties. He was unwilling to sacrifice everything else in the world to his work. The Union Pacific passed out of the father's hands when the health failed, the Manhattan Elevated out of the son's hands, and three-fourths of the mileage of the so-called "Gould roads" is now in the hands of receivers.

TASK CONFRONTING HILL.

The dominance of young Mr. Hill in the great railway system founded by his father depends probably less upon his ability than upon the serious spirit in which he undertakes the work, his ability to get the ablest lieutenants and his willingness to trust them.

Most young railroad princes fail in the last respect. The ablest men will not stay with them because the young princes will not confide in them and to believe sufficient power upon them to make them efficient.

It is not possible to secure the kind of whole-hearted service that very able and sincere men give to a job until they feel trust and confidence. It is not necessary to give such men a square deal when they make good.

Hill's sons and lieutenants have been, in the past. The New Haven road was undoubtedly the last and example of that kind that will be seen by this generation.

Young Mr. Hill's first public utterance since his immense railroad property passed nominally to him, "as long as the railroads give good service they will have good credit," shows exactly the right spirit if they will live up to it. It shows his father's good sense and it is in full accord, not only with the words but the acts, of the successful railroad men of this time.

Prepared Pacifists

The Pilgrim Fathers were prepared pacifists. When they went to make a treaty with their neighbor, Massasoit, several musketeers stayed in the offing in case of trouble. But the peace pipe was the only weapon used.

PROMINENT MEN TO SPEAK AT CREDIT FUND JUBILEE TONIGHT

In view of the approaching end of the whirlwind campaign being waged by the Massachusetts Credit Union to raise $50,000 for a "State-wide campaign of education to spread the doctrines and benefits of credit unions; to assist in their proper and efficient organization, and thereby successfully provide and encourage thrift, and eliminate usury," a public jubilee celebration will be held tonight in Ford Hall.

All the necessary details have been completed for the event. The committee in charge has arranged for a large attendance. Many unique features will be introduced and several speakers of national reputation will deliver short addresses.

Among the speakers will be Congressman Meyer London of New York, Miss Mary Antin, author of "The Promised Land," and George W. Coleman. An invitation to address the meeting has also been extended to Congressman Phelan of Lynn, who played a prominent part in the rural credit bill recently adopted by the United States Senate.

Maxwell Copelof, president of the Massachusetts Maintenance Society, will preside.

A feature of the evening will be the singing of Yiddish folk songs by Constance and Henry Gideon. A large number of young women who are connected with the Credit Union House will act as ushers.

Nathan Silliner, general campaign manager, will report the total amount raised by the various teams since the campaign began. The various captains will also report on their collections for the day. So far the collections reported by the captains and members of teams are very encouraging.

NEW WORKERS ENROLL.

Additional workers are being enrolled daily. The campaign received a new impetus yesterday, when the presidents of the various Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew associations of Boston and vicinity met and voted to issue an appeal to all the members of their respective organizations urging them to co-operate in the present movement.

The appeal reads as follows:

To the Members of the Young Men's Hebrew and

Young Women's Hebrew Associations:

The Massachusetts Credit Union is engaged in a noble work for the benefit of the whole community.

Such work cannot be successfully carried out, unless the community is thoroughly educated to the benefits to be derived from, and the good to be accomplished by this campaign.

We, members of the Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A., striving to establish community interest and civic enthusiasm, therefore, should resolve to help the credit unions in their splendid campaign. Their success means one step nearer our goal.

Each member of the Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. should, therefore, do his or her share, and respond to the appeal for establishing this constructive philanthropy.

DAY'S COLLECTION, $1,615.

Only a few teams reported yesterday. The day's collection was $1,615. Many captains are withholding their reports for the jubilee meeting tonight.

Ones more the honors for the highest collection for the day went to Nathan Sallinger, captain of team No. 16. He reported a day's total of $625. The next highest team was Felix Vorenberg's. He reported a sum of $200.

Fred Vorenberg, chief of captains, presided at the luncheon. The speakers included Henry G. Hagan, president of the Boston City Council; Rabbi Herman H. Rubenovitz of the Temple Mishkan Tefila, Roxbury, and Max Mitchell, president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

The following new list of individual contributions has been reported by the various captains and team workers:

Albert W. Kaffenburgh, $200; S. Rosenberg, $200; William Schelnwald, $200; Arthur Wallace, $200; Rafael Susman, $25; Rosen, Ludwig and Wasserman, $25; M. Sharaf & Co., $25; Samuel Guttman, $25; O. J. Saxe, $25; Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson, $15; I. Reinberg, $10; Charles Hurwitz, $10; H. Lieb, $10; W. Berger, $10; William Hurwitz, $10; Constance & Henry Gideon, $10; I. Lapin, $10; Philip S. Aronson, $10; Ikeybury Rubin, $10; Louis Pierbelm, $5; Philip Lieb, $5; Bernard Lott, $5; N. Meyer Rosenfield, $5; Samuel Solat, $5; J. Fishman, $5; N. M. Margulis, $5; Henry A. Eyers, $5; Samuel N. Fishman, $2; Edwin Haskin, $2; John W. Goddard, $1.

BROKE HIMSELF OF SMOKING CIGARETTES

A St. Louis Man Broke Himself of Smoking Cigarettes and Chewing by a Simple Home Remedy.

Harry Riska, a well known resident living at 1421 S. 11th St., St. Louis, Mo., broke himself of the cigarette habit and chewing with a simple recipe that he mixed at home. In reply to the question as to what he used he made the following statement: "I used a simple recipe which I mixed at home and which is as follows: To 3 oz. of water add 20 grains of Muriate of Ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and ½ grs. of Pepsin. Shake and take a teaspoonful three times a day. Any druggist can mix it for you at very little cost.

"This recipe can be taken yourself or given secretly to another in coffee, tea or milk or in food, as it has no taste, color or smell and is perfectly harmless."

SOCIETY

The first June bride is Miss Elizabeth Hope Bancroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft of Beacon street.

The marriage of Miss Bancroft and Alexander Winsor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor of Boston, took place today in St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Beverly, where the Bancrofts have their summer home.

Miss Eleanor Bancroft, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the best man was Robert Winsor, Jr., a brother of Mr. Winsor.

The bridesmaids were Miss Marie Agassiz, Miss Nathalie Thayer, Miss Harriet Dexter, Miss Frances Prescott, Miss Penelope Parkman, Miss Margaret Lyman, Miss Elizabeth Coolidge and Miss Winsor

caused the question of credentials to which Root and Winch were opposed, but which was not pressed. Proper delegation when Hanna should be elected to the national committee by Fairbanks.

DISPOSE OF FIRST CONTEST.

The first contest consisted of that from the Fifth and Sixth Virginia districts, which charged the number of defaulters and alternates had been elected.

This question was referred back to the Virginia delegation with the request that the contests be settled by the delegates themselves. Chairman Hilles called attention to the fact that whereas the instructions of Texas had made similar provisions delegations under the call for the convention there had been only in a single instance a contest.

Chairman Hilles recommended the ingenuous plan that all acted in good faith all the delegates be seated alike and that a vote cast. There was considerable opposition to acting forthwith and finally the entire question was referred to the national committee, making Committeemen Simons and Warren.

The committee then entered on the contested delegations be placed on the temporary roll and directed that all contests be taken up alphabetically. Chairman Hilles then sprang another innovation when he suggested that in all contested cases the committees from that State be required to refrain from voting on that question. This was agreed to without protest.

HUGHES STRENGTH GROWS.

While the committee considered the question of contests, the Hughes strength was becoming more and more evident. Members of the committee, without regard to their personal views, admitted that the justice was gaining fourth.

The arriving delegations brought reports of Hughes support among the delegates back home and the impression was growing among the delegates that the convention that before the convention meets next week there would be a number of willbreaks among the so-called favorite son candidates.

Members of the national committee, however, steered as clear as possible from any question of any candidate.

They discussed procedure with the utmost candor but at no time did they touch upon the claims of any of the nominees.

The following were the absentees in the committee membership: Porto Rico, Committeeman Willis; Alaska, Committeeman Bayliss; North Dakota, Committeeman Marshall; Nebraska, Committeeman Howell; Connecticut, Committeeman Henney, and West Virginia, Committeeman Hyand.

The proxies were George W. Norton, Maine; Fred W. Upham, New Jersey; Charles Innes, Miss.; C. D. Hilles, Ohio and W. H. McKinley, Hawaii.

The first snarl to tie up the committee was a suggestion from Chairman Hilles that all the evidence in the contested cases had been heard by the entire committee a sub-committee of three be named to prepare an opinion in each day. This caused a general debate, a number of the members taking the position that if this was done an impression might be created that something was to be concealed by the committee.

HUGHES MUST FACE BITTER FIGHT TO WIN NOMINATION

By WILLIS J. ABBOT.

Chicago, June 1.—The discussion of Hughes has taken a new form. The question is not so much "can Hughes be nominated?" as will Hughes stand for the savage fight he must engage in?

When the mysterious candidacy of the Justice was first launched, by whom history does not record, it was declared that if the Republican convention should by acclamation select the justice as the nominee he would accept.

The Hughes' sponsors were more moderate than T. R. They did not insist that the country must be in an heroic mood to nominate him, though. Indeed, it would require something approaching fanaticism for any politician to support Hughes and mention the fact to him thereafter in any hope of favor.

Indeed, the Hughes idea gradually receded from the notion that only a commission by acclamation would appeal to the serene jurist. Finally, that he would take the nomination if it came without a real fight in the convention, or menace of a fight afterward.

They insisted, however, that the justice would countenance no unseemly scramble for the nomination. The judicial ermine, which in our Supreme Court takes the form of a silver collar, which, once worn, must never be dragged in the mire with the consent of Charles Evans Hughes.

But now behold the situation. In no national convention that I recall has the ambition of any candidate aroused more acrimonious discussion and offered greater possibility of scandal than that of Hughes.

I need not say there has been a more bitter contest between one candidate and another than that fought between the followers of Hughes and Roosevelt shouters have been silenced by the sin. They merely lie quiet, but satisfied, contemplation of the fight upon Hughes.

Out of the fight he has grown a very decided impression that Hughes will have to withdraw that regard for his judicial bench. Nothing less than common political prudence will compel him to "go to the mat" in order to go before the convention.

SAYS HUGHES WONT RUN.

One of the best known of the favorite sons in conversation with a delegate of national standing, whose name I implicitly forget, declared his conviction that Justice Hughes would not permit his name to go before the convention.

"Of course, the wish may have been father to the thought," said the delegate or the nominating fortified his opinion with substantially these arguments:

"Think for Justice Hughes has said nothing. His friends have, on occasions, have put him in a position of dignified aloofness from any political activity, but by their actions they have shown the existence of an announced, undefined, avowedly political force hourly working for him.

"The first pellet taken for him instantly engulfed in the whirlpool activities of his champions. It makes him, a justice of the Supreme Court, the active partisan of Frank Hitchcock and the beneficiary of that politician's notorious methods of getting delegates. Win or lose, Justice Hughes, if he actually enters the convention fight, instantly pleads guilty to having used the high station of the Supreme Court as a cloak of sinister purpose to conduct a political campaign. If he loses, his future career on the bench will carry with it an unerasable stain.

"He will be self-convicted of ambition, without profit from his dishonorable course.

UNCERTAIN OF VICTORY.

"But if he wins the nomination?"

"In that event he must resign from the bench to carry on a campaign for re-election certain of victory. Colonel Roosevelt has not been particularly valuable in discussing Justice Hughes, but the little he has said has shown no friendship. His followers are left resentment. It seems to me certain that the nomination of Hughes would be followed by the candidacy of Roosevelt on a Progressive ticket. What that means everybody knows.

"It appears to me evident that regard for the dignity of his office, and a prudent consideration of the chances of the campaign, all urged Justice Hughes to withdraw before the convention meets. If he does not he is certainly not the type of man his friends were have described him to us, for, about somersaults, the chief thing about how faces him is nothing like that spontaneous nomination by acclamation or that honor tendered without a fight to which, alone, he was said to aspire."

This analysis of the situation proceeds from one of the men who will not be lower than 10 per cent in the balloting. Call it a prejudiced opinion by an interested person if you will, but it not, nevertheless, coldly logical, and largely unanswerable.

The collapse of Hitchcock and Hughes today has been but a first rumbling of a breaking storm. Even the Hughes people know it is in, and many did not hesitate to declare that Hitchcock was out, in fact, working for Hughes, but put out his statement to do that candidate injury—a slanderous charge, no doubt, but a sample of the sort of innuendo that will be directed at the justice of the Supreme Court if he continues to leave his good name in the hands of anyone who may choose to use it for any purpose.

So long as complete silence veils Justice Hughes from public knowledge, there is no reason why the delegates should not forgive the evil they bear of him quite as much as the good.

With Hitchcock and Governor Whitman out at present his most prominent advocates, it is exceedingly hard for anyone to believe him quite without responsibility for the political methods being employed in his behalf.

Wilson to March in the Washington Defence Parade

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—President Wilson today announced that he would march in the Preparedness parade to be held here on Flag Day, June 14. A local committee called at the White House to ask the President to review the parade.

"I not only will review it, but I will march in it," was his reply. "You can rest assured the White House will be represented."

The committee men at once made plans for the President to lead the parade. It was stated that the President will walk with the rest of the marchers, and will not ride in an automobile.

Prince of Wales May Wed Italian King's Daughter

Paris, June 1.—That Prince Edward of Wales, heir apparent to the British throne, is to marry Princess Yolanda, the eldest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and girl of rare beauty, was the report received here today from Rome.

The twenty-two-year-old Prince of Wales visited Rome a few weeks ago and then made a trip to the Italian front, where he was the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. After his return the King is said to have summoned the princess, with the Queen, to royal headquarters to extend his congratulations. It was while returning from this visit that the Queen and Princess Yolanda narrowly escaped death when aeroplane aviators attacked their train.

The Princess Yolanda celebrated her fifteenth birthday today.

DORCHESTER DAY PROGRAM OUT

John F. Dever, who takes his duties as clerk of committee with the duties of director of public celebrations, today, in the latter capacity, announced the program for Dorchester Day and Historical exercises, under the direction of the Dorchester Historical society, at the Blake House, at 1 p. m., and at the William H. Russell School, Columbia road, at 2 p. m.

The children in the Oliver Wendell Holmes School district will be entertained under the direction of the Harvard Improvement Association at 1 p. m. and 2 p. m., in the school hall.

At four p. m. there will be a tenmile road race, starting at the Oval, Franklin Field. This will be under the direction of Hugh C. Moffrath of the park and recreation department.

Band concerts will be given from eight to ten p. m. at Franklin Field, Edward Everett square, Christopher Gibson playground, Fields Corner, Seven Hill playground, Fields Corner ground and Eaton square, Meeting House Hill.

Fined for Sunday Work.

Gaston Nichols, a photographer of Dorchester avenue, was found guilty of doing business on the Lord's Day in the South Boston court today and was fined $10.

ASKS DIVORCE, LISTS THINGS SHE DODGED

Martin V. B. Waterhouse of Dedham, whose wife asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty, was expected to have a chance to present his side of the case when the trial of the suit was resumed today in the Suffolk Superior Court.

Mrs. Waterhouse testified that her husband hurled at her:

Bad language.
Plates.
Roast beef.
Alarm clocks.
A table.
A pot of beans.

"If I hadn't been a good dodger, I might have been injured," she testified.

An indication of her husband's side of the case came when on cross-examination, she admitted having written a letter to a man named Scanlin in which she said:

"I am not feeling as good as I did at Peak's Island. I wonder why?"

She said she was at Peak's Island in July, 1915, and that Scanlin was there.

MAN ARRAIGNED ON ARSON CHARGE

Joseph Tamborino, accused of arson and burning to defraud an insurance company, was placed on trial in the Superior Court today. He is charged with having set fire in his home at No. 60 Chambers street, West End, on the afternoon of March 31.

W. Owen Murphy, a fireman, testified he found two fires burning. He carried out two tar boiler fires filled with paraffin and containing a liquid. Philip Kane, an insurance broker, testified there was insurance of $1,400 on the contents of the house.

COURT HOLDS TWO WOMEN FOR DARING HOLDUP AND ROBBERY

Mary Cauthers, tall, muscular and weighing 240 pounds was held in $10,000 bonds by Judge Duff in the City Court today for a continued hearing on June 9 on a charge of holding up Alfred M. Williamson of Dorchester, a government employe, last night on Beach street and taking his wallet and $135, also on three counts of breaking and entering rooms in the Adams House.

Elizabeth James, 24 years, of Lenox street, a more slender and girlish type, was held in $1,000 for the same continuance on a charge of being the Cauthers girl's "pal" in the Williamson holdup.

In addition to the formal charge of holding up Williamson the police say that the Cauthers girl has been identified as connected with a string of other holdups of men on Boston streets at night.

In the past seven days five other men have been accosted on the streets at night by two women and have been robbed of varying amounts. The police say that four of these men came to headquarters today and identified Mary Cauthers as one of the two girls concerned.

Mary Cauthers is 22 years old. The police give her an alias of Lillian Joyce and say that she has an Atlantic City record as a thief and is known to the Manhattan police as a "badger" worker.

The James girl, alias Elizabeth Kelliher, has, the police say, a record of one conviction for shoplifting.

The arrest of the two girls was due to Williamson, the government employe, as the police describe. The Boston Directory lists no Alfred E. Williamson of Dorchester.

Williamson was hurrying down Beach street last night to take the 11.30 express to New York. Near the corner of Lincoln street, as he subsequently told the police, two girls, one slender, the other tall and powerful, accosted him, then pushed him suddenly back against the wall of a building. One held him there, the other secured his wallet, containing $137. Williamson grappled with them, snatched his wallet back and gave chase.

Patrolmen Flon and Goldrick patrolling the district, arrived on the run. One girl fled along Lincoln street, the other into South street. Both were caught. Williamson told his story hastily, then kept on toward his train.

The girls were taken to headquarters. The men who had made previous complaints of being held up in this manner were asked to see the girls, with four identifications of the Cauthers girl being made, the police say.

The story of three rooms at the Adams House being entered on March 14 also came out in connection with the Cauthers girl.

On that night three rooms occupied by Frank G. Hall, son of George Hall, the hotel proprietor, and by George Couch and Albert E. Musgrove, guests, were entered by a girl who went through the hallway trying doors. The doors to these rooms were unlocked. The feminine intruder, on finding the rooms occupied, hastily retreated. Frank Lyford, bell hallman, finally caught the girl in the act of opening a room door. He brought her down to the hotel office where Proprietor Hall identified her suit.

In the midst of this she broke away from the head bellman's grasp, fled out to Washington street and mingled with the crowd just emerging from a nearby theatre. Lynch caught her, but when the girl appealed to the gallery crowd, Lynch released his hold rather than have too much trouble.

The police say that Lynch and one of the Halls of the Adams House came to headquarters today and identified the Cauthers girl as the one who was trying the room doors. So the police have a new charge of breaking and entering against her.

In court both girls were represented by Edward Creed. Bail for the Cauthers girl was first set by Judge Duff at $5,000. A cash bond was forthcoming quickly. Then Judge Duff decided to double the bail.

MAYOR AND FITZ JOIN IN "L" PROTEST

Mayor Curley and former Mayor Fitzgerald today joined forces in protesting to Governor McCall the proposed makeup of the committee to investigate the Boston Elevated Company.

Together they appeared at the State House and asked that five members of the board be appointed to represent Boston, the appointments to be made by the Mayor of Boston.

This action came as the result of a call by former Mayor Fitzgerald on Mayor Curley. It is the first time he has been to Mayor Curley's office. This is taken at City Hall to mean that the break between them has been permanently healed.

According to the bill passed by the Legislature, the committee to investigate the Elevated Company is composed of the Public Service Commission, the Transit Commission, five members of the House and four members of the Senate.

Both the Mayor and former Mayor point out that most of those slated for positions on the investigating committee do not live in Boston, or those who do, several live in the Back Bay and not one in Dorchester or Roxbury. They claim these districts are the worst served on the elevated system.

The Mayor and former Mayor gave the following joint interview:

"The membership of the proposed committee to investigate the Elevated Company's poor service is composed largely of men who live not only out of Boston but even out of Greater Boston. The worst place on the whole system is Dudley Street Terminal. We feel that several members should be appointed to the committee who live in Dorchester and Roxbury and who know just how bad conditions are.

"We do not feel that those who live up state should have a majority on the committee and have the control of deciding upon Boston's transportation facilities. It seems just and proper that the Mayor should name at least five men on the committee. These men should officially represent the city on the committee and preferably be men who live in Dorchester, who have a first hand and daily knowledge of how bad conditions are."

Chief Features of Shackleton's Antarctic Dash

August 4, 1914—The Endurance left the Thames.

September 12—Sir Ernest sailed from Liverpool for South America.

October 26—The Endurance sailed from Buenos Ayres.

December 30—The Aurora left MacQuarrie Island.

May 6, 1915—The Aurora went adrift in Ross Sea.

October 27—The Endurance crushed on Weddell Sea.

March 25, 1916—News of the Aurora received.

April 16—Shackleton lands on Elephant Island.

The [illegible] news of the safety of Shackleton and his men reached London at the top of a statement in the House of Commons by Premier Asquith.

The Premier informed the House that a committee had been appointed by the Admiralty to consider methods of organizing a relief expedition to rescue Shackleton and his men. He said that Parliament would be asked to vote the necessary funds for that purpose, and that the expedition would be started with as little delay as possible.

There had been [illegible] agitation for a relief expedition [illegible] on the news of the mishap to the supply ship Aurora, which returned to New Zealand early in [illegible]

TERRIBLE ITCHING PIMPLES ON FACE

Large, Red and Hard. Burned So Large Spots Appeared. At Night Could Not Sleep.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"A few pimples made their appearance on my face, and thinking that they would soon disappear I did nothing to remedy them, but after a couple of weeks I then found that they were rapidly increasing. They were large, red and hard and they itched and burned so that soon large red spots appeared caused by my rubbing. At night if I would rub my face it would itch terribly so that I could not sleep.

"I chanced upon a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent for a free sample, and then bought more and my face was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Edith C. Schuman, 17 Bedford St., Hartford, Conn., Sept. 20, 1915.

Which Kind Will You Buy?

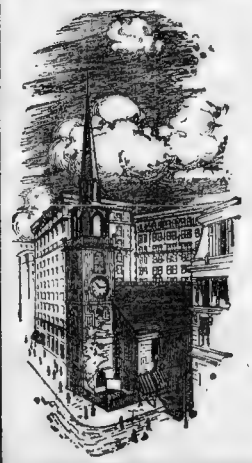
WILL you buy bread made in a modern bakery where cleanliness is a commandment preached and practised—bread made from the finest materials obtainable and containing distinctive properties which nourish and strengthen the human body—or will you be content to buy just ordinary bread?

The first kind is WARD'S BREAD and the second is just the ordinary kinds.

The great difference between WARD'S BREAD and the ordinary kinds is not only that it is so clean—not only that its quality is supreme—not only that its purity is beyond question or reproach—No! In addition to all these fine attributes, the gulf which divides WARD'S BREAD from the other kinds of bread is the wonderful health-sustaining and body-building value which it possesses to a marked degree. And, mark you, there is no secret—no mystery—in this special merit which WARD'S BREAD contains. It is all as simple and as clear as the alphabet is to the scholar.

The advance of science cannot be halted nor denied. WARD'S BREAD is made under the most modern and scientific process, has very special merit as a healthful and nutritious food and is guaranteed to be 100% pure. The water used in making WARD'S BREAD is filtered to take out the organic matter formed in all city water. Then to the water is added, in small and proper quantities, Arkady Yeast Food (U. S. Registered Trade Mark, issued May 9th, 1916), a preparation approved and protected by United States patents. The use of this new and wonderful bread-making discovery makes WARD'S BREAD better, and this is why:

City water varies in different localities. In some places it is hard—in others soft—according to the amount of mineral salt, and this condition makes a marked difference in bread. Arkady Yeast Food is a compound of mineral salts, chiefly lime salts, commonly found in natural waters. Because of this mineral content, Arkady Yeast Food modifies natural waters to the best standard for bread making. It also reduces the amount of yeast required by more than half, thus shortening the fermentation period, conserving a greater proportion of the food value of the wheat and producing a more nutritious and healthful loaf than can be made under any other known method.



It is the addition of Arkady Yeast Food which gives to WARD'S BREAD the exceptional value of being able to aid in strengthening and nourishing the human system and assist in the building of bone, teeth, muscle and tissue.

Arkady Yeast Food is the result of years of scientific research conducted persistently in the laboratories of the Mellon Institute of the University of Pittsburgh by scientists of national fame. It marks the first real step forward in bread making from the standpoint of science which has been achieved in generations.

Try WARD'S BREAD today. Buy a loaf of TIP-TOP or DAINTY-MAID and let them prove the truth of our claims. You will find them sweeter with less of the yeasty flavor and more of the natural wheat flavor than any loaf of the ordinary kinds. You may be certain that WARD'S BREAD is clean and appetizing, but above everything else, you will find it PURE and WHOLESOME.

Made every day for the people of Boston and vicinity, in the Ward Bakery at Cambridge, where visitors are always welcome

Yale Can't Accept Because of the Harvard Race

New Haven, June 1—The Yale crew has declined an invitation to row against a crew from the Students Rowing Club of Christiania, Norway, on July 2. The invitation was extended by a cousin of King Haakon VII. of Norway, Jan Schjerve, who came to America to present the invitation in person. He tore an elaborately engraved invitation and numerous letters of introduction. During a five days' stay here he has been the guest of the University [illegible]

How to Help Thousands

Most everyone is anxious to help in some way to remove pain and suffering—that is why so many homes now have on hand, ready for instant use, a bottle of Minard's Liniment. It is sold by druggists everywhere as the one dependable Liniment for stopping pain of all kinds. For backache, lumbago, rheumatism, soreness, stiffness and for sore throat and feet, Minard's Liniment quickly and surely gives instant relief. It is absolutely pure, entirely stainless and cannot burn nor blister. It soothes the fevered wounds and bruises and heals healthfully. Be sure your bottle is not empty. You may need it any moment. Nothing can take its place.—Advertisement.

Hooper Won't Be Out Over a Week, Says Club Doctor

GOOD news; glorious news! When Harry Hooper, the Red Sox star right fielder, broke down rounding second base in the fourth inning of yesterday's [illegible] with the Senators at Fenway Park, his teammates and the fans gasped [illegible]

While he sprained a tendon in his right leg, the club's physician stated today that the injury was not at all severe and Hooper would not be kept out of the game for over a week. In the meantime Olaf Henriksen will escort in the right meadow.

Manager Carrigan intends inking Hooper on the trip West tonight, and, while Harry will scarcely be able to get into the Cleveland series, unless going up as a pinch hitter in one of the late games, and even that is most unlikely, he will stick right with the team and return to his position the first afternoon it is possible for him to work.

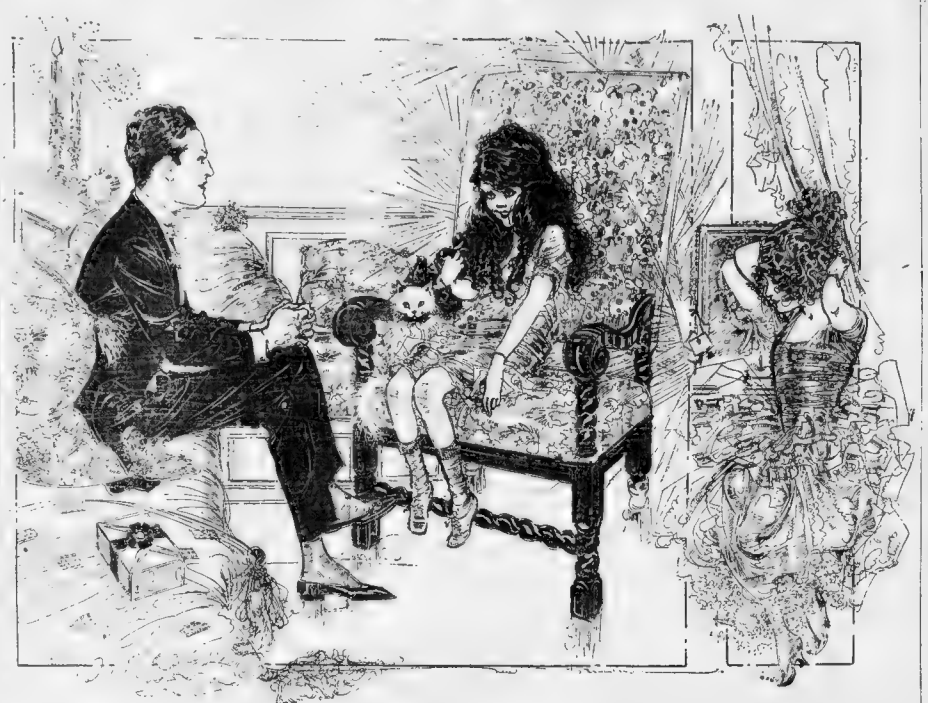
The Queen's Messenger

(Alias Miss Information)

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service



DON'T make that tragic mistake of letting your mail-clerk who is intensely interested in world-wide affairs read your beautiful love ambassador too long when you send her down to be brief for that young chap until you come down! Your little red tongue will trip along with some things that will light a queer shade in his eyes perchance! Who knows? Do not know Mr. Jack Thus-and-So?" she will lisp. "He calls to see my sister. He has red hair and his sister likes it, too, red hair. He comes, but mother doesn't like him as well as she did mother likes him better! And I like you and my sister likes your eyes and hair, she said, what? I don't remember what color you said. Do you know my sister does her hair up in curl-papers? That's why it's all so darling way. Don't you like it? I do. But curl-papers look funny. My sister said not to talk too much, 'cause, she said, all men like to talk about themselves and you did, too, even if you were a darling.' But you haven't said anything yet. My sister" ----

And this terrible "my sisters" will go on and on, babbling like a gossipy little brook. And perhaps your lover's eyes will glower horror-stricken as it goes; or perhaps they will lighten exultantly because he knows now something that you've demurely hidden.

The Queen's messenger should be followed in haste!

I explained, and offered to pass into a fourth-class carriage, or pay the difference in the price of the tickets.

"That will not do. You have infringed the law, and must pay six marks—the maximum fine."

"I will get out at Owen and will explain matters to the stationmaster," I said.

I got out.

"The fine is six marks," said the official peremptorily.

"But," said I, "I demanded a third-class ticket and was given a first, which I had not asked. This was an oversight on the part of the clerk."

The train was detained five minutes while we thrashed out the question on the platform in great detail, and the other passengers craned their necks out of the windows of the carriages and listened with lively interest. At last, reluctantly, the stationmaster yielded; but I must pay the difference.

"What is it?" I asked.

"One penny."

Sir Archibald Geikie told a story of a minister's prodigal son, who returned home one evening and found his father giving a Presbyterian dinner. "Where have you been, sir?" asked the father sternly. "In hell," quoth the son. "Ah, and what did you find there?" "Much the same as I find here." I coudna see the fire for meenisters."

The love of Lord Charles Beresford for a fine cigar has often been the source of amusing incidents, and one of these has recently been disclosed. Lord Charles was at one time a guest at Windsor Castle, and after being shown to his bedroom on the night of his arrival, he immediately lit a cigar. Presently the smell of the smoke reached the nostrils of a custodian who was not far off, and he came to the door and told Lord Charles that he must not smoke in the bedroom. The Admiral thereupon went into the corridor and continued smoking there, but the custodian again asked him to desist. Lord Charles did as he was bid, but marched out on the balcony, where, thinking that as he was in the open air no one could object, the cigar once more came into play. But the inexorable custodian followed at his heels and in deeply-injured tones said:—

"Smoking is not permitted, sir, in any part of Windsor Castle."

As soon as he had gone Lord Charles returned, crestfallen to his bedroom, but suddenly a happy thought struck him. There was an open fireplace in the apartment, so, lying down on his back on the floor, he put his head under the chimney and finished his cigar in peace.

ECONOMIC LOSS IN INCREASE OF WAGES

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—A serious economic loss has resulted from the general wage increases granted to employees in the United States, according to reports of the general investigation into labor conditions made by federal reserve agents. The reports made public by the federal reserve board relate to strikes that in the main have not yet shown money losses, but to increased costs of living, increased cost of doing business, increased cost of living and the failure of industrial plants to make sufficient or reasonable profit as preventing the realization of profits of any profit from expansion.

Instead of taking advantage of the present wonderful opportunity to make large earnings, they are apparently not getting more money, however when wages were much lower. The whole country is suffering economic loss.

From all the districts, covering the entire country, the reports of the investigation indicate general labor unrest which is causing great concern to business men, to cutting down production and forestalling expansion.

NEW ENGLAND SLOW ON PEACE TALK

Business men in New England are marking time in their industrial and commercial dealings because of rumors of an early peace in Europe which have reached them, according to a special report by the Federal Reserve Board of Boston.

Summarizing special reports from the other eleven Federal Reserve Districts the Federal Reserve Board says:

Business activity in the United States has perhaps reached the maximum of the present movement, but the labor unrest and impending labor difficulties, together with the Mexican situation, the shortage of raw materials, freight congestion and unfavorable crop reports from some sections have combined to discourage further expansion, reports to the board from all sections of the country indicate. Money rates are low, however.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were still irregular in New York at noon, but the tendency during the morning. During the second hour a number of issues including Lehigh Valley and Reading advanced 1 point. United Fruit became strong, leading Railway Steel Spring and Butte & Superior improved on reports that the American steel sugar sold at its highest record price. The market remained fairly narrow. First four transactions totaled but little more than the selling pressure since early.

The Department of Agriculture reports the cotton crop condition on May 1 was 77.5, compared with 81.4 last month and 74.2 in 1914. The ten-year average is 79.8.

The British government has stopped speculation in copper on the London Metal Exchange for the present and no sales will be allowed. No British dealer may buy a pound of copper except for immediate delivery.

Industrial Alcohol ¼, Marine preferred 1½ points each, Baldwin Locomotive ¾, Lehigh Valley ¼ and Union Pacific, ex-dividend ¼.

Among declines were Anaconda ¾, Utah Copper ¼, American Smelting ¾, American Zinc ¾, Butte & Superior ¾, Kennecott ¼, Central Leather ¼, Mexican Petroleum ¼, Texas Company ¼, Crucible Steel ¼ and Chesapeake & Ohio ¼.

United Fruit became the feature in Boston in the late morning session, the stock advancing 3 points and closing much. Gains at 12 o'clock included United Fruit 3, Gulf common ¼ and preferred ¼.

Among declines were Anaconda ¾, Zinc ¼, Butte & Superior ¾, Copper Range ¼, Granby ¼, North Butte ¼, Calumet & Arizona ¾, Copper Range ¼, Granby ¼, North Butte ¼, Calumet & Hecla ¾, Lake ¼, Osceola ¼, United Shoe ¼, U. S. Smelting ¼ and Boston & Maine ¼.

Prices were irregular in New York at the opening, changes being slight in most cases, up and down, as a rule. Mexican Petroleum was an exception, starting with a fraction gain. There was in a measure due to the Carranza note demanding the withdrawal of Mexico by United States troops. Earliest trading was of fair volume only. American Beet Sugar was strong and active stock. It was traders' material and crushed by bear talks. More and more attention is being given by the professional element to the Republican national convention. The public is manifesting very little interest in stocks. That the Republican candidate for President is nominated, it is believed that the market will remain narrow and halting.

At the end of ten minutes the majority of issues were showing small losses and if there was a tendency it was toward a lower level. U. S. Smelting as well as Mexican Petroleum showed a drift toward conditions south of the Rio Grande. Coppers were weak and active. The bulk of the business was in a few individuals and a number of house tips.

There was no feature to the Boston market at all worthy of mention during the first few minutes. Trading was very light and the tone was of a hesitating breadth nor interest. Zinc issues soon became active, however. They declined 1 point. At the end of that period Butte & Superior was off ¼.

The forced visible supply of copper decreased forty-six tons in the United Kingdom during the week, continue to slump in London, where spot copper and futures were.

Spot tin was unchanged, declined 11 spot tin was off 5s., futures were unchanged and Straits was off 6s. spot declined 5s. off 2s. 6d. Spot Spelter declined 1s. and futures 1s.

ORDER RETRIAL OF E. C. GILMAN SUIT

Judges Putnam, Dodge and Bingham of the circuit court of appeals today ordered a new trial in the case of Edwin C. Gilman, a Boston attorney, against the Boston Elevated company. Before Judge Morton and a jury, Gilman was awarded a verdict of $24,000, which later was reduced to $22,000. Gilman sued the company for breach of contract.

Making the Mississippi River Safe Is Not a Pork Barrel Scheme

To the Editor of the AMERICAN:

I AM sending you an editorial which appeared in the New Orleans Item. I would like you to reproduce the editorial.

To my mind, making the Mississippi River safe, and making it navigable, is in no way a "pork barrel" scheme, is in no way a local proposition and has no sectionalism about it. It is a national scheme of as much importance to the nation as a whole as the improvement and fortification of our ocean coast and harbors.

As a matter of fact, the Mississippi should be made a part of the coast line of the United States. It should be possible for vessels of large tonnage to navigate from New Orleans up the Mississippi through the Chicago Canal to the Great Lakes and through the Erie Canal to New York harbor.

This internal coast line is as important as our external coast line. Its construction and maintenance in safety and security are a vital part of the preparedness programme and a vital part of the commercial programme of the United States—of the whole United States, not merely of a part of the United States.

Only narrow sectional prejudice on the part of certain small Americans living in the interior States stands in the way of a great and proper preparedness programme, which would fortify and develop our sea coasts and harbors.

Only an equally small sectional prejudice on the part of certain inhabitants of our seacoast States stands in the way of this great and proper development of the mighty interior waterway of this nation, the Mississippi River.

There is no place for such narrow sectionalism in any broad plan for the development and unification of this great nation.

The more intelligent minds in the country realize that the development of any part of the country means an advantage for the whole country, and that the whole country can only advance through the development of every section.

The development of the great central waterway of the country, the Mississippi River, is an act of duty, an act of patriotism and an act of justice.

The transformation of the States which border on this waterway into commercial coasts is as important as the development of those coasts which front upon the ocean, and will do more than anything else to unite this country in its commercial aims and efforts, which are so important at this time, and in the realization of the necessity of protecting those commercial activities, a matter which is equally important.

If the people of the coast States desire the people of the interior States to appreciate fully the unity of this country and the common requirements of every section of it, the people of the coast States should begin by showing their appreciation of these vital facts and by supporting plans for the development of the Mississippi River as enthusiastically as they support the plans for the development of their own coasts and harbors.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

"CASE" AGAINST FLOOD CONTROL

A NUMBER of powerfully influential newspapers print attacks on the flood-control measure which has just passed the House, crippled by the Lenroot amendment. We print elsewhere an expression from the Chicago Tribune, as more or less typical.

The line of argument they adopt seems to us conspicuously unfair. Nor does it seem to us that such unfairness in the case of a newspaper like the Tribune can be explained on any ground but that of injustice; for the Tribune's sources of information and its editorial talent are about as adequate as money can procure.

All these comments describe this measure as purely a pork-barrel measure. Yet this is precisely what the Mississippi River legislation has ceased to be.

The Mississippi's just claims upon the nation, as a highway of commerce, and the just claims of the suffering people of the lower river to a fair share of protection from the nation which pours its waters down upon them—this subject matter stands upon ITS OWN BOTTOM before Congress and the country. And the country, represented by the three great contending political parties, has recognized this people's claim.

There is no reaching, no grabbing, no trading. The proposal stands upon its own merits, and demands support on them, for its value to the nation's commerce as a whole, and for its conservation of the enormous taxable national values that the increasing floods have desperately jeopardized.

The work it proposes to do, these merits once conceded, is not to be done on any ANNUAL plan of pork-barrel accident or caprice, but on a fixed, systematic and sustaining basis.

We think this disposes entirely, in any just mind, of the pork indictment—and nobody has raised that indictment more insistently against other proposals than ourselves.

It may fairly be said that several men who have been prominent in the old rivers-and-harbors councils are also conspicuous in their advocacy of this pending bill. But it may be said with equal truth that others who have fought those councils are supporting it. Does the conversion of a man from a bad method to a good one damn the good method in discriminating eyes? Isn't this carrying intolerance to the stupid extreme of straining reason to excommunicate repentance?

It is a curious circumstance that the main ground urged by the supporters of this measure against the ideas underlying the Newlands bill is precisely the main ground alleged against this measure itself.

"It is nothing but a reclamation scheme," Mr. Humphreys and his followers said.

"It is nothing but a reclamation scheme," say the opponents of the Humphreys committee bill.

This allegation is just as silly from the one source as from the other. If it had not been initiated on one side, possibly it would not now be echoed in opposition by the other.

"RECLAMATION" is the CONVERSION of WASTE lands—deserts, swamps or cut-overs—by human labor and artificial works into productive areas.

The main purpose of efforts to control the Mississippi is the PRESERVATION of vast productive areas, great cities and farms, ALREADY EXISTING, against the EVER-INCREASING floods poured down upon them in EVER-SWELLING volume by the improvement of the still vaster areas to the north.

This is NOT "reclamation"—it is national CONSERVATION of immense established values.

It is true that large tracts of lands now wasted would probably come under settlement and cultivation when the river is controlled. River control would, therefore, increase the value of these lands. But this in no sense obscures the simple fact that this bill's primary purpose is to PRESERVE EXISTING VALUES in the flood region against ever-enlarging agencies of DESTRUCTION from the rest of the nation, which the region itself has become wellnigh POWERLESS to combat alone.

Are these vast values, fruitful acres and teeming cities, to be given over to DESTRUCTION because THEIR just protection increases the value of OTHER lands now unfruitful? Is not the conversion of the waste places to human use, the development of new values, one of the HIGHEST and TRUEST functions of GOVERNMENT, of CIVILIZATION itself?

And shall the struggling heirs to these great EXISTING values, in city and country, accumulated by the LABOR and devotion of two CENTURIES to be consigned to decay because THEIR proper salvation and expansion may happen, INCIDENTALLY, to benefit the owners of some wastes?

Shall Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans, the countrysides between, be held with their faces to a grindstone turned by their fellow-citizens above them because their release from unfair bondage to the floods would benefit the owners of waste places, who have not the money to make their possessions anything except wastes BECAUSE these possessions ARE wastes?

Is this not STUPIDITY masquerading as STATESMANSHIP?

The opponents of all flood-control measures loudly scorn the theory that the States which SEND down their water upon us are RESPONSIBLE in fair part for our PROTECTION against it. This theory, however, from its obvious justice, evidently worries them more than anything else, for many of them devote a large part of their time to weak efforts to prove it at fault.

As a matter of fact, however, this claim to national consideration for the flood valley is but the simple expression of a principle so clearly derived from the needs and rights of human society as to have been embedded among the fundamentals of the two great legal systems by which the whole Caucasian race is ruled.

The Civil Code, for instance, drawn from the Roman law, says this:

"It is a servitude due by the estate situated below to receive the waters which run naturally from the estate situated ABOVE, provided THE INDUSTRY OF MAN HAS NOT BEEN USED TO CREATE THAT SERVITUDE. . . .

"The proprietor ABOVE can do nothing whereby the natural servitude due by the estate below may be RENDERED MORE BURDENSOME."

We had no desperate and critical flood problem a generation ago. Such floods as came spread out or were controlled in levees that this valley could afford to maintain today at a fraction of the expense to which the vaster floods have put us. These floods are vaster because "the proprietors above" have shorn the trees from their mountains, straightened their streams, drained their lakes, tilled their farms, and, year by year, "rendered MORE BURDENSOME" our "NATURAL servitude."

The same principle is clearly stated by the commentators on the ancient Common Law.

Blackstone, among his "common nuisances," lists "public rivers," either positively by actual obstructions, or negatively, BY WANT OF REPARATIONS.

"The Parish at Large," he says, "may be indicted, constrained to repair and amend them." The nation is but a greater parish.

"If a water course is stopped," says CHITTY, "to the nuisance of the country, and none appear bound by prescription to clear it, those towns which have the immediate use may be compelled to remove the obstruction."

If we hold that the water may not be STOPPED to the nuisance of the country, may we not require protection when it is STARTED, or ACCELERATED, to the nuisance of the country? Does anybody deny that the terrible catastrophes now recurring every few years in the flood valley ARE "a nuisance to the country"? Why should those who START or ACCELERATE these waters not be compelled to ABATE their destructive RESULTS?

Kent summaries and applies for America the principles of the laws of England.

"Every proprietor on the banks of a river," he says, "has naturally an equal right to the use of the water which flows in the stream . . . AS IT WAS WONT TO FLOW, WITHOUT DIMINUTION OR ALTERATION. No proprietor has the right to use the water to the prejudice of the other proprietors above OR BELOW him.

"The owner must so use and apply the water as to work no material INJURY or ANNOYANCE to his neighbor BELOW him.

"He must not . . . detain the water unreasonably, or LET IT OFF IN UNUSUAL QUANTITIES."

We could continue these quotations at far greater lengths. The principle they all lay down is the mere expression of human experience. These authorities have NO INTEREST in the pending legislation. All of them are DEAD generations ago, and they discussed principles then centuries old.

Every competent lawyer is familiar with these principles. Our recent reading causes us to suspect that a good many editors and congressmen are ignorant of them.

Congressman Mann apparently recognizes the principle, but seems to think we are not entitled to its protections.

The pioneers and settlers found floods on the Mississippi WHEN THEY CAME HERE, he contends. We, their descendants, were on notice when we built upon what they laid down. We took our chances and are entitled to no relief against floods from other regions at this stage in our history.

His conclusions would be true if his PREMISE were not UNTRUE. The floods along the early Mississippi were NOT the floods of today. Farms and cities were laid out and grew up beyond the reach of floods, or in sites where they could be PROTECTED from the NATURAL flow of the river, at REASONABLE cost.

While these great national values we are now struggling to protect were founding and developing, the country FROM WHICH the waters come was a WILDERNESS. These regions, too, are now settled. The settlers and their children, by the UNRESTRAINED processes of their industry and artifice, have so tremendously ALTERED the face of their lands as to reduce our own people to the verge of desperation in our efforts to protect ourselves against the UNNATURAL floods thus launched upon us in ALWAYS-GROWING volume.

We have quoted you the experience of the human race on the rights, wrongs and entitlements of the case. We think we have disposed of the only respectable pretence at proof that the people of the Mississippi Valley, in particular, are not entitled to the simple justice that human experience proclaims for such situations as theirs.

NOT PORK, BUT PREPAREDNESS
